Charter Election Runover Provided by Council

MAJORITY VOTE
TO BE NECESSARY
IN CHARTER FIGHT

If Runover Is Required,
Election Will Be Held on May 30, According to Council Vote.

CLEAN BILL IS GIVEN TO GRADY HOSPITAL

Several Recommendations
Are Made, However.
Architects' Fee Restored to 6 Per Cent.

City council voted unanimously Monday afternoon authorizing a run-over election on May 30, in event the first election on May 16 does not give one of the three charters a clear majority; adopted a report of its special probe committee exonerating Grady hospital management of charges of inefficiency brought against it; restored the fee for architectural service on the bond issue schools to 6 per cent; retained L. W. Robert & Co., as consulting engineers on the school program, and passed a resolution requiring the Georgia Railway and Power company to place concrete bases under its street car tracks upon notice by the city to do so.

Council also voted an appropriation of $17,000 to purchase as one of the junior high school sites six acres of property bounded by Eighth street, Fowler street, Techwood drive and Sixth street; voted the purchase of additional ground at Lucile avenue school and adopted a resolution appointing a special committee to find out who is collecting the rental on the Edgewood avenue market property, and what disposition is being made of the funds.

In deciding to allow a second charter election the standpat adherents of the present charter and the supporters of the Choate charter came over and accepted the viewpoint of Councilman Edgar Watkins, author of the "Atlanta plan" charter, who introduced this motion two weeks ago, when it was voted down by a big majority.

Congratulates Authors.
Monday, the measure carrying a run-over election call was offered by Councilmen Nutting, Wood, Ashley and Alderman Davis, leaders in the standpat group. Mr. Watkins congratulated them on their change of position.

In a second primary the two charters that received the highest number of votes in the first election would be pitted against each other.

Councilman J. R. Nutting, standpat leader, prepared and put in at the meeting a resolution to change the name of Mr. Watkins' "Atlanta plan" to the Watkins plan, in the pamphlets to be printed. He said he was afraid some voters might confuse it with the present plan, which he stated, is really the Atlanta plan.

The author protested sharply that such action would be most unfair, since he named the charter the Atlanta plan.

Constitution to Inaugurate
New Radio Concert Service

A month has elapsed since thousands of radio enthusiasts were treated for the first time to the strains of the great city organ of Atlanta by wireless. It was the first time, as far as is known, that an organ recital was successfully broadcasted. And The Atlanta Constitution's radio service was the agency through which this notable achievement was made.

Now, after experimentation, The Constitution is preparing to give radio enthusiasts all over this section the opportunity to hear great artists of the musical world by means of the new Edison phonograph. A supplementary concert service by means of the Edison machine will be started within a few days by The Constitution, broadcasting from WGM.

Use of the Edison phonograph makes available the best work of some of the greatest singers and instrumental musicians in America. Their tones and the tones of their instruments will be reproduced by radio just

Jazz in All Forms
Outlawed by City
Fathers of SavannahOrdinance Declares Jazz Is Indecent and Injurious to Public Morals.

Savannah, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Jazz, whether it finds its expression through some of the latest dances or in the masterpieces of Tin Pan alley, has been outlawed in Savannah.

Hereafter the saxophone must be content to confine its wails to jazzless music, and a maiden—no matter how pretty she may be—must not twitch her shoulders or direct her feet in any steps that even suggest jazz.

A cop might be listening and watching.

In other words, city council doesn't think it's nice to syncope music or dancing, as shown by its action this afternoon in passing the Garfunkel ordinance after the city had been up in arms pro and con for the past week.

Purpose of Act.
Mr. Garfunkel says his ordinance is designed "to bar and ban indecent dances and music with immoral suggestions."

The law, as passed, is as follows: "All forms of dancing to jazz music or syncope music at public dance halls or at hotels or at public dances, or in the public streets, and the same are hereby declared to be unlawful, and are hereby prohibited as being indecent and injurious to the public morals."

Heavy Penalty.
"Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this ordinance, whether as the proprietor of any public dance hall, or pabillon, or other place where such dances are held, or whether as the promoter of any such dances, or whether as a participant in such dances, shall, upon conviction before the police court of Savannah, be fined in a sum not exceeding $100 or be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, either or both, in the discretion of the court."

Three Eligibles
For Postmaster
Job in Atlanta

Civil Service Commission
Gives Out List Resulting From Last Examination.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.
Raleigh Hotel.
Washington, April 17.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The civil service commission today announced the following eligible list for the Atlanta postmaster position: First, George E. Morgan; second, Edwin K. Large; third, Watson Fuller.

This list is the result of the last examination held in January, former examinations having been thrown out on one pretext or another: the examination prior to this becoming futile on the ground that only two candidates who took the examination qualified, whereas, three eligibles are required before an appointment can be made.

Under the existing executive ruling the three eligibles stand upon an equal footing, therefore if this list is accepted, no one of the three whose names are given has an advantage of the president's civil service ruling over the other.

Under the old Wilson ruling the specific candidate making the highest score is given the job.

NATIONAL PARTIES

Thirty-Four Senators and Entire New House of Representatives to Be Elected This Fall.

STATE FACTIONALISM
MAY DIVIDE PARTIES

Many Angles Will Affect
Results in Scattered Sections—List of Primaries Given.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, April 17.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Headquarters of both national parties, including those of the congressional campaign committee, are in full swing tonight. They always begin on Easter Monday.

Thirty-four of the ninety-six senators and an entire new house of representatives of 435 members will have to be elected this fall, and the nominating primaries are distributed throughout the summer.

The first congressional primaries were held in South Dakota on March 28. In Illinois they were held last Tuesday. From this time forward primaries and conventions are scattered through the months until August and September, when the party machinery will start full operation.

The congressional elections are of the greatest importance from their national scope and country-wide interest constituting a struggle between the administration in power and a virile democracy. The result of the fight will do much to shape national policies towards the next presidential campaign, and will bear directly on the future activities of the Harding administration.

Alignments Forming.
Even the state campaign preliminaries have an indirect bearing on the 1924 presidential election, as alignments are being formed now which will affect party leaders later on. This is particularly true of Ohio, where all phases of the senatorial fight have a national significance. If Senator Pomerehne is re-elected in the president's own state, overthrowing a republican majority of nearly 400,000, he will become a formidable candidate for the democratic nomination.

Factional issues in other states may cause division of parties, resulting in new organization alliances, which may strengthen one party and weaken the other, with respect to the chances in November.

An example of this is found in the Illinois republican primaries held last week, when the machine of Governor Small and Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, was overthrown. Old-line republican leaders appear to have gained control again. But the defeated machine is not of the type to leave the fight on first defeat. They will retaliate with a knife thrust from the rear, before permitting

Kimball House.

Plans to enlist the support of all citizens of Georgia served by short line railroads in a movement to bring needed relief to these lines so as to prevent further abandonment will be formed at a meeting of the Short Line Railroad association, which will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday at the Kimball house. Representatives of the short line roads and delegations of citizens living on these roads will be present at the organization meeting. J. A. J. Henderson, president of the Ocala Southern railroad, will preside at the meeting.

It is planned to take steps to wage a campaign for legislative relief and for relief from other sources which, it is believed, will prevent the further abandonment of these lines and assure their future operation. In the

World's Leading
Tenors to Appear
In Battle RoyalFive Great Singers Will Compete for Honors During Opera Week.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.
Atlanta has a new thrill for this opera season—the first battle royal of tenors ever staged in the more or less sacred arena of the Auditorium.

Heretofore during Atlanta's twelve years of Metropolitan warblings, it was always a foregone conclusion as to tenor honors. Last season, even with the great Caruso ill, Gigli was quoted at a 1-100 shot and no takers.

Then Gigli pulled up with a lame vocal chord and all interest was lost in the Tenor Handicap.

This year, it is different. Five tenors of equal prominence, with equal record of achievement for the season, are scheduled to appear. It's a fair field with no favor.

Martelli will be first out in "Ernani" and a flock of backers, due to his brilliant performances here in other seasons. Harrold will show his stuff the next day in "Carmen" with plenty playing him after recalling his "Rudolfo" of last year. Gigli, highly touted by such an eminent authority as Colonel William Lawson Peel, will appear Wednesday in "Loreley."

Thursday, Salzar, a long shot, will be played in "Pagliacci." Friday, Gigli will try his second effort in "Traviata" with Galli-Curci as a running mate. Saturday, Harrold will again show in "Faust" and Martelli in "The Love of Three Kings."

In the last performance there's a dark horse, a two-year-old named Chamele, that there is a lot of whispering about and it comes right from the feed box. He starts in "L'Oracolo."

Step right up, gentlemen, and take your pick.

THREE FLIERS DIE
IN AIR COLLISION

Marine Planes, in Battle
Practice, Lock Wings in Air and Crash to the Ground.

Washington, April 17.—Two marine officers and a marine private were instantly killed today at Quantico, Va., when two airplanes in battle practice locked wings in the air and plunged to the ground.

The dead are: First Lieutenant Earl M. Randall, of Winchester, Mass.; Second Lieutenant Duncan W. Lewis, of 727 North Fourth street, Memphis, Tenn.; Private Jos. J. Dhooghe, Chicago, Ill.

Lieutenant Randall was flying alone in a German Fokker and Lieutenant Lewis was pilot of a Vought plane with Private Dhooghe acting as observer. Ascending to an altitude of approximately 4,000 feet the two planes were carrying out battle maneuvers, one trying to get above and in back of the other as would happen in actual warfare, when the planes locked. One wing was torn completely off each plane, causing them to turn sideways and then plunge to the ground.

The Vought plane landed on one of the buildings on the flying field while the Fokker struck, telegraph wires, glanced off and fell alongside the railroad track.

Two-million loss in Maryland fire.

Pocomoke City, Md., April 17.—With ten acres in the heart of this city burned over, causing an estimated property damage of more than $2,000,000, Governor Ritchie tonight ordered a company of the fifth regiment, Maryland national guard at Salisbury to proceed here at once to protect property which escaped the flames.

Tonight the town is in darkness. The wires are down. The heart of the business section is in ruins. Both banks have been destroyed, and in addition to business structures, fifty homes fell prey to the flames. Communication with the outside world has been established by tapping wires on the outskirts.

Realizing that after midnight there would be no means to illuminate the streets, Mayor Cull telephoned Governor Ritchie for troops.

TRIAL OF FORMER
DECATUR CLERK
BEGUN IN DEKALB

Decatur, Ga., April 17.—(Special.) H. H. Ehle, former city clerk of Decatur, who is charged with having embezzled approximately $5,000 of the city's fund, was placed on trial today in the Dekalb county superior court. Ehle pleaded not guilty and has summoned a large number of witnesses.

The alleged shortage was discovered in the fall of 1920. William Schley Howard, a present member of the Decatur board of commissioners, is defending Ehle and Solicitor-General A. M. Brand is representing the state.

FRANCE MAY LEAVE
GENOA CONFERENCE

Consternation Permeates
Parley Circles as Significance of New Two-Power Alliance Is Realized.

BY RALPH H. TURNER.
United News Staff Correspondent.

Genoa, April 17.—Germany and Russia, in announcing they have formed an economic alliance, sprang a coup which leaves the allies considerably bewildered.

That the agreement, concluded at Rapallo, confuses the situation at Genoa is admitted on all sides.

France, aroused to indignation by the sudden announcement of the alliance, is demanding that Germany be thrown out of the conference. She regards the treaty as amounting almost to defiance of the allies, coming as it does in the midst of the Genoa conference called solely to reach a general European settlement as regards Russia and Germany. That these two nations should have framed up an economic alliance secretly and announced it to the world at Genoa is construed by the French as a virtual notice from Germany and Russia that they plan to go ahead on a mutual basis regardless of what the rest of the world does for them.

British Incensed.
The Russo-German treaty is a dishonorable action, a breach of loyalty toward the Genoa conference, and a challenge to Europe. British official spokesmen declare, in open denunciation of the economic alliance between the two eastern powers.

Consternation and dismay were expressed everywhere in allied circles as delegates studied the terms of the agreement.

British spokesmen said the conference was called just to prevent the splitting up of Europe into two camps which the Russo-German treaty threatens to effect. They could scarcely find words strong enough to convey their indignation.

Rumors flew around that France would withdraw from the conference. She is known to be incensed at the treaty. There is no question but that the very life of the Genoa project hangs in the balance.

George Still Hopeful.
Lloyd George, however, is still hopeful.

Asked by the United News about the rumors that the conference was about to break up, the British premier said:

"You always hear rumors wherever there is a conference. Personally, I am optimistic."

He was then asked about reports that the French were planning to withdraw.

"No, no," he answered emphatically. "They're not going home."

Regarding the conference of allied leaders which was called immediately upon announcement that the treaty had been signed, Lloyd George said: "The allied attitude has not yet been definitely decided. It will be necessary to continue the discussions Tuesday. Meanwhile I am hopeful."

Was Surprise.
The news was almost a complete surprise, for although the allies knew the treaty was under negotiation, they had no idea it was ready for signature and furthermore they had no inkling of the tremendous significance of the document.

Allied spokesmen openly declared a "critical" situation had arisen, and at once on learning that the treaty had been signed, Premier Facta, acting as president of the conference, called the representatives of the five nations

Chicago, April 17.—The weatherman is on the wildest tear of a half century.

Chicago, April 17.—Thirty-two persons are known to have been killed, 209 are injured, many seriously, and property and crop loss will reach four millions, in less than 48 hours of floods and tornadoes in three mid-western states.

Southern Illinois, southern Indiana and eastern Missouri Monday night was an area of mad waters, wreckage and chaos.

Leaves north and south of Cairo, Ill., were straining and threatening and hundreds were in a mad effort to escape the apparent peril.

Beardstown, a veritable island, still reported no loss of life, but efforts to reach the city were fruitless.

A late report came from Hedrick, Ind., by way of Lafayette, and said that at least 10 were dead and 100 injured by a terrific electrical storm and subsequent flood waters there.

At Brooks and Sloan, nearby, four were reported killed and 15 hurt.

The central division of the American Red Cross at Chicago was appealed to for aid by the Greek county chapter of the Red Cross and early Tuesday probably will dispatch relief trains into the devastated areas.

Here is the latest authentic summary of dead and injured:

Washington, April 17.—Starting Tuesday, the United States government begins the actual work looking to a refunding of the tremendous sums owed us by foreign powers.

A new conference of the debt funding commission has been called by Secretary Mellon, chairman. Secretaries Hoover and Hughes, Senator Smoot and Representative Burton will meet with Mellon to organize their work. All have been studying the big problem for weeks, it is learned.

First on the list is Great Britain. Britain has been regarded from the outset as the most likely to begin immediate payments on her obligations and she, in turn, has notified her debtor allies that she will expect

HEIRS OF ESTATE OF GRANT WILL BE ASKED TO CONSENT

City Attorney Rules That This Step Will Be Necessary Before the Property Can Be Used.

ACTION IS "BLUNDER," CLAIMS J. R. NUTTING

"It Would Be Mistake of Our Lives," Says Councilman Couch—Measure
Passes by 19 to 10 Vote.

After a brief but sharp fight Monday afternoon, city council voted 19 to 10 in favor of turning over to the board of education ten acres of the north end of Grant park as the site on which to locate the buildings and campus of the senior girls' high school.

The action was conditioned on securing consent of the L. P. Grant heirs. Councilman J. O. Wood read from a certified copy of the deed conveying the land a provision stipulating that the property must "forever" be used for park purposes.

Grant Heirs Must Consent.
City Attorney Mayson ruled that consent of the Grant heirs would have to be obtained before the property could legally be converted to any other use. It was stated at the meeting that there are nineteen heirs of the Grant estate.

Wearing flaming yellow badges inscribed with the words "Save Grant Park," a delegation of approximately 30 south side men and women were spectators at the session. They were keenly disappointed over the result.

Councilman J. R. Nutting, who bitterly fought the suggested encroachment on the park preserve, said he hoped the south side citizens would enjoin council's action, and declare that if it were done the attempt to build the school there would be set aside.

Members voting in favor of the Grant park location were Aldermen Duvall, Chosewood, McLendon, Davis, and Councilmen Sawright, Wardlaw, Moon, Stone, Woodall, Ashley, Anderson, Jenkins, Buchanan, Watkins, Russell, Alford, Callaway, Murphy and Olson.

Those opposed were Aldermen Cochran, Wilder, Hunter, Carpenter and Councilmen Wood, Couch, Etheridge, Nutting, Baker and Sims.

Plan Is Attacked.
Half a dozen members took the floor to attack the plan. Alderman A. H. Cochran asserted that if the people had been warned during the bond issue campaign that part of Grant park would be taken for a school site the bonds would have been defeated.

He said he didn't favor any of the sites that have been mentioned. He argued that ten acres would be surplus area and suggested that another block adjoining one owned now by the city at Washington street and Woodward avenue would be large enough for the school.

"It would be making the mistake of our lives," was Councilman Couch's view.

Alderman Carpenter declared that to take any of the park would be lacking in respect to the wishes of the donor, and he hoped the effort would be stopped by a bill of injunction.

Councilman Nutting urged the council "not to commit so grave a blunder as to undertake to violate the stipulations in the Grant deed." He said there are nineteen heirs of the Grant estate, two of them minors, and it would be practically impossible to gain the legal consent of all of them.

point of economy, Councilman Sims stated he would like to know where anything would be saved by accepting in exchange for the ten acres an unimproved tract which it would take $200,000 or more to develop. He said he could see no saving in such a trade for either the school department or the city.

Councilman Murphy and Councilman Russell spoke for the plan. "Some of these men who are following parks the loudest have never been known to work for park improvements," declared Mr. Russell. "I proposed a recreational director and Mr. Nutting was the only member of the finance committee to fight it. The parks come to council for a perfectly legitimate thing and Mr. Nutting, Bob Gordon and some others sit down on it."

VETERAN MEMBER OF POLICE FORCE DIES ON MONDAY

Robert Steele Osburn, died Monday afternoon, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Williamson, 435 Gordon street. Mr. Osburn until recent months lived at Forrest Park, Ga. On becoming ill sometime ago, he and his wife moved to the residence of his daughter where Mrs. Osburn died March 6, of this year.

Surviving Mr. Osburn are five daughters: Mrs. J. W. Hollingsworth, Mrs. B. F. Smith, Mrs. J. C. Williamson, Mrs. E. O. Brannon and Mrs. J. I. Smith, three sons, J. E. Osburn, of Birmingham, Ala., W. R. Osburn, Savannah, Ga., C. P. Osburn, Atlanta, and a son-in-law, I. D. Brundine, of Macon, Ga.

Mr. Osburn was a Confederate veteran and served in the 30th Ga. regiment. At the time of his death he was a member of Camp Walker U. C. V. He was one of the charter members of the Tabernacle Baptist church, a member of the Board of Deacons, having served in that capacity for twenty-three years.

Brilliant Audience Attends Opening of Little Theater

Atlanta took her place in the forefront of America's drama-supporting cities Monday night when the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium was formally opened for original dramatic offerings with the play club production, "Democracy de Luxe," a three-act play by Parker Hord.

Before an enthusiastic audience that filled the new theater to capacity the play scored a pronounced hit and won spontaneous approval of all present. Admirably acted throughout by a cast of unusual talent the initial offering in Atlanta's latest innovation in the way of a playhouse firmly established the auditorium as a permanent institution.

The scene of Mr. Hord's excellent play is laid in the home of Cornelius Blake, a capitalist of note, on New Hampshire avenue, Washington, D. C. Act one opens upon an April afternoon when the springtime fancy of Eugene Danforth, a young newspaper reporter, turns to thoughts of love, the object of his devotion being Marjorie Blake, daughter of Cornelius Blake.

A large portion of the author's cleverness is injected into the opening scene which develops into an interesting theme when "Pa" Blake suddenly comes into the elaborately decorated drawing room at the psychological moment, just as the youthful Romeo whispers into his lady love's ear a wish that he might propound the all-important question to Marjorie's father.

The arrival of Mr. Blake causes Danforth immediately to wish he had been less impulsive in his words to Marjorie. A wager is made whereby Blake promises his consent to Danforth's marriage to his daughter together with a check for $10,000 in the event he proves his assertion that he is an exceptional newspaper reporter and obtains a scoop of international importance to the newspapers of the world.

Miss Erskine Jarnagin, as Marjorie Blake, very capably enacts her part and completely captivates the audience as much so as she does her young love, Eugene Danforth, played by Louis Morrison. The natural poise of Miss Jarnagin augmented by her beauty entitles her to the leading part in the cast. In this she shares honors with Mrs. Urie Atkinson, prominent Atlanta society matron, who takes the role of the erstwhile royal family of Dalania, who is visiting the Blakes in Washington for the purpose of negotiating a possible marriage to one of this country's wealthy gentry.

William Gilmore Perry, professor of English at Georgia Tech, renders the part of Cornelius Blake in a most natural and excellent way. His finished technique in impersonating an ideal American capitalist was perfect. And now the plot thickens. Countess Vainisi has made a decided indent in the heart of Cornelius Blake. He takes advantage of every opportunity to tell her so. It appears that he is highly considered as the choice of the countess' quest. This thought is dispelled spontaneously upon the undersided entrance of Prince Boris Verdy, played by Philippe D. Burge, through the window of the Blake home. He explains his unceremonious appearance by telling the countess that he followed her several blocks in a taxicab and saw her enter the Blake home.

Boris renews his pleadings with the countess to marry him. They were sweethearts in Dalania until the revolution swept that country causing him to flee to Africa. They have not seen or heard from one another for three years until fate brings them together in Washington.

The second and third acts of any play are filled with unexpected thrills and involving international intrigue in which Danforth obtains his "scoop," the prince secures the countess, Blake enriches his fortunes by entering into a partnership with Boris, who in order to be near his heart's ideal obtains the position as assistant butler in the Blake home, and the climax comes with everyone happy.

Special credit is due to Henry E. Peoples, as Perkins, the butler; Harry Ellerbe, as "Dobyns," an applicant for the position of assistant butler in the Blake home; Victor Victor, as Baron Maravoff, the scheming villain in the play; Miss Cleveland Zahner, as Smithers, the maid; and Cyril Smith, as Count Saratino, the foreigner from Dalania.

The opening of the Woman's club auditorium drew one of the most brilliant audiences that has attended any kind of production of this type in Atlanta in years. Atlanta's most prominent society people were present and there was a touch of a New York "first night" noted during the evening.

The audience was profuse in its applause and all present seemed thoroughly to enjoy the evening. Many words of commendation of the work of the Woman's club in fostering "the little theater" idea were heard.

The play was produced under the direction of Mrs. Chauncey Smith, president of the Woman's club, assisted by Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin. The attractive stage setting was prepared under the direction of Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Ransom Wright. A musical program arranged specially for this production was played under the direction of Enrico Leide, conductor of the Howard theater orchestra.

Tickets to the remaining performances of "Democracy de Luxe" for Tuesday evening and Wednesday matinee are on sale at the Cable Pico company.

WILSON-TUMULTY BREACH IS HEALED

Washington, April 17.—Former President Wilson understands and appreciates the manner and spirit, respectively, in which Joseph P. Tumulty presented some quoted words of Wilson's to the Jefferson day banquet in New York as a "message" to democrats assembled there.

Friends of the former executive, in making this fact known, also manifested pleasure and relief in the thought that Wilson and his long-time secretary and loyal friend would eventually resume their old relationship. As previously stated by the United News, Tumulty, upon his return from New York last week, immediately wrote Wilson a letter. He explained in detail how the "message" happened to be delivered, expressing regret at the construction placed upon it and his deep sorrow that it had caused Wilson personal concern. Whether Wilson received this letter before or after he wrote his public rebuke, which was a political sensation here for several days, is still not known.

provision for payments of sums owed her by them in the near future.

Great Britain, being best able to pay, will probably suffer the severest loss for refunding. It is the plan mission to discuss the refunding operations with each power in turn; first, England, then France, then Italy, and so on down the list having due regard for the domestic financial conditions of each power. There will be no standard rate and no standard limits for final liquidation of the indebtedness. England's rate may be higher and the date of maturity sooner, for example, than that of France or Italy.

As the situation stands today there appears to be no way for refunding the Russian debt of approximately $200,000,000. The American commission is prepared to carry on negotiations but holds that it has no one with whom to negotiate, under the present unrecognized status of the Russian soviet regime.

Expeditious Cash. The British delegation is expected to reach Washington by the end of April. It is expected that the operations in her case, at least, will embody provisions for payment of some cash on May 15, the next interest date.

There is particular interest attached to the funding operations with Britain, because it is upon the possibility of such cash payment or negotiable papers from her that the administration leaders have hung their hopes for working out a practicable scheme for paying soldiers' bonus, starting this year, without upsetting treasury operations.

It has been repeatedly stated on highest authority that President Harding sought delay in bonus legislation until such time as there were in the treasury sums of negotiable paper in payment of interest or principal on foreign indebtedness sufficient to take care of at least a large portion of the first bonus installment. After the treasury was supplied with this fund, it was added, it would be difficult to find a single man opposed to soldiers' compensation.

THREE ELIGIBLES FOR POSTMASTER

average was entitled to, and would thus receive the appointment unless personal objections of a serious nature should have been registered.

The civil service system so far as appointments to office under the Harding administration, has been so torn and abused that it is not possible to forecast what will be the result of the present situation as to the Atlanta postmaster. It is enough to say that the present republican party authorities in Georgia have booked for this office, failed to make the grade, and hence his name does not appear on the list of eligibles. It is also true that the second choice for the Atlanta postmastership, who also took the examination, does not appear on the list, having also failed to make the grade.

It is not altogether certain that even another examination will not be called for this republican administration has not been given any serious concern to upholding either the integrity or the spirit or the letter of the civil service law, hence its every attempt to utilize them to a promotion of the old snail system.

Success Assured Claim Salvation Army Drive Heads

Final measures to insure success for the Salvation Army's annual home service appeal, which began tomorrow morning, were determined Monday at a luncheon at the chamber of commerce which brought together a large and enthusiastic gathering of Atlanta citizens who will carry the call of the Atlanta corps to the public.

Preston S. Arkwright, head of the Georgia Railway and Power company, and president of the army's local advisory board, presided in the absence of Judge L. F. McClelland, financial chairman of the appeal. Judge McClelland was unavoidably absent from the city Monday, but sent a message to the luncheon expressing the utmost confidence in the favorable outcome of the appeal.

Among the leading Atlanta organizations represented by delegations at the luncheon were the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the Junior chamber of commerce, Atlanta post No. 1, the American Legion, the Atlanta lodge of Elks, the Rotary, Kiwanis, Christian and Ad Men's clubs, and the Atlanta real estate board.

Hearty applause greeted Mr. Arkwright's statement that responses and pledges of support received even before the actual appeal is launched indicate an even greater demonstration of co-operation and liberality from men of women and organizations and business concerns than was the case last year.

"We are deeply indebted to you men who are giving your time and effort to the Salvation Army's only call for help," said Mr. Arkwright, "and I'm sure you'll be gratified to hear how far we have made far greater progress than at the same stage in 1921. We should all remember that this is literally an 'appeal' and not a campaign or a drive."

A parade by the Elks' big band will formally notify downtown Atlanta that the appeal is under way Wednesday morning. Simultaneously teams of workers will begin a systematic canvass, each team soliciting throughout eight districts into which the business section has been divided.

Other Speakers.

Lieutenant Colonel Joseph Atkinson, commander of the southern division, and Ensign Herbert Young, director of the army's part in the appeal, were other speakers at Monday's luncheon who were emphatic in predicting success.

Judge McClelland on Monday was in receipt of a letter from the Rev. James A. Horton, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, in which Father Horton warmly commended the Salvation Army's work in France and pointed out that they are still working in the same spirit at home to help those who are in trouble.

Mrs. Irving S. Thomas, chairman of the women's division of the appeal, reports an increasing volume of individual subscriptions from Atlanta women. She urges that contributions be mailed promptly to headquarters, 57 Walton street, in care of Mrs. Rogers Winter, secretary.

dollars worth of damage to crops and property, and cyclones that are wrecking those parts left untouched by the unprecedented rush of flood water.

Mississippi on Rampage. Nearly six weeks of rain—which showed no sign of stopping Monday—have filled every river and creek to the highest banks, and levees, taxed beyond their strength are breaking and flooding thousands of acres of farmlands. The Mississippi is raging to the gulf with a flood stage of 32.7 feet at St. Louis.

While fresh reports of additional thousands being made homeless by the floods in Illinois were being received Monday, with railroad bridges swept away and towns cut off, the town of Irvington, Ill., was hit by a cyclone and almost completely demolished, with seven lives lost and 35 severely injured. Farmhouses and outbuildings were picked up and carried hundreds of yards. Telephone poles, twisted, railroad tracks and ears, great tree trunks, together with a mountain of other debris marked the site of the village.

The same cyclone hit Nashville, Ill., but with less force. Trees and small buildings were knocked over, and all wire communications broken off. Because of the impassable roads, rain drenched for weeks, aid to the stricken towns was delayed. Benton, Ill., was also hit and one man killed, while the twister wrought havoc with all buildings in its path.

MISSING MAIL CARRIER RETURNS

Savannah, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Rufus Rudolph Rogers, a rural mail carrier, who mysteriously vanished after taking his route Friday morning, returned to his home late last night, apparently suffering from mental trouble, unable to give an account of his whereabouts for three days.

Being cared for by friends and his family, he late today tried to elude them and start away again. He has been in ill health. Postal authorities stated his accounts are absolutely correct. His substitute, E. P. Quarterman, was to have been married Saturday, but when Rogers' disappearance was announced he, at the advice of his bride-to-be, postponed the wedding until last night.

WORDS SHOULD FIT THEIR USER

Did you ever stop to think that words may be like clothes—too large or too small? That when they do not suit the thought they are ill-fitting and unpleasant to the party who hears or reads them? Yet this is, indeed, often the case. And every person should choose his words with care, so they may not be too big, like fathers' trousers on his little son, or too little, like a hand-me-down suit three sizes too small for a growing boy. Besides, a person who uses words that do not convey his exact meaning loses the force of an idea that might accomplish much in deed and action. A lack of skill in the use of these tools of thought may serve to keep one down in the world when he belongs on top. If you once learn to use a dictionary, you will be surprised at the rapidity with which you will advance. We had in mind the immense benefit to our readers when we chose The New Universities Dictionary for general distribution in this community. Our coupon, published daily in this paper, shows the gift-nature of the plan, and should be cut out and presented at this office with our small distributing cost.—(Adv.)

wide at some points, started to recede a few inches and hopes were raised that levees still protecting cities along its course, might hold the 25-foot wall of water, terrific gales swirled in and partially unaided the work of thousands of men working to reinforce the banks. At Beardstown, which is now an island in the 18-mile wide river, the gale caused the Cole creek levee to break, sweeping miles of railroad track into the flood.

A telegram from Mrs. John Chambers, mayor of Naples, Ill., told how she was leading the fight of citizens there to save belongings from flooded homes. The entire town is now living on a bluff in tents.

All efforts to reach Meredosie, Ill., completely under water, were unavailing. Cloudburst at St. Louis. St. Louis suburbs are floating in from four to six feet of water, according to reports, after a series of cloudbursts.

In Indiana, the Wabash river is still pouring over its banks and reports declare that many thousands of acres of fine farmlands are under water and livestock losses are serious.

In Wisconsin, scores of towns are flood-stricken, with communication either cut off or badly damaged. From Denver, Salt Lake City and many other points in the Rocky mountain region come reports of unprecedented snowstorms and rains.

TORNADO HITS ARKANSAS TOWNS.

Fort Smith, Ark., April 17.—According to belated messages received here tonight a tornado struck several towns in western Arkansas Saturday night, causing property damage estimated at $100,000 to $150,000. All wire communication with points in the storm area was severed and reports are slow coming in. Towns hit by the twister include Altus, Ozark, Clarksville and Manito. The latter was reported completely razed. No loss of life has been reported.

SIX BELIEVED DEAD AT ALEXANDRIA.

Alexandria, La., April 17.—Six persons are believed to have been killed north of here this evening when a cyclone swept the northern part of Madison county. Two are known to be dead. The storm struck Alexandria, Orestes and Summitville, and was a part of the tornado that cut a wide path across Indiana.

ASK PROMPT CUT IN MELON RATES

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

Washington, April 17.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The senators from Georgia, Florida, Alabama, South and North Carolina today signed a communication to the interstate commerce commission urging that immediate action be taken giving a reduction in freight rates on season melons from the southeastern territory to the eastern and middle western markets. Two increases have been made in these rates, one for 25 percent and another in August, 1920, for 33 1/3 percent.

"We believe these rates unless reduced, so as to take care of the year's crop," said the senators, "will greatly lessen further production and we urge that action be had reducing the rates so that the reduced rates may take effect applicable to the present crop as the crop in some sections begins to ship."

The interstate commerce commission informed Senator Harris last week that they could not say when a decision would be reached and the approach of the watermelon season has brought renewed activity to get a reduction.

To Investigate Shrinkage.
An investigation of the losses in weight through shrinkage of watermelons in shipments from Georgia to the eastern and middle western markets is expected to be made by the federal bureau of markets. It is claimed that Georgia growers suffer large losses due to the weights when shipped and those which are maintained when the buyer pays the grower at destination. It was also urged that the bureau send inspectors to Georgia to inspect the shipments about the best methods of inspecting and packing the watermelons. The bureau chief informed Senator Harris that he would go into the matter at once. Data was presented from J. J. Parrish, secretary of the Southwest Georgia Melon Growers' association.

Postmaster Nominations.
Georgia postmaster nominations sent to the senate today are: Martha C. Vinson, Byron; Frank Summerour, Duluth; Sallie M. McDaniel, Norwood; Jacob L. Roberts, Pinehurst; Ezekiel L. Seago, Rebecca. Resolutions of the Grand Army of Republic veterans and World War veterans of Tallapoosa, Ga., were presented to the senate today by Senator Harris, protesting against the summary removal of Victor L. Howe, a world war veteran from the position of postmaster, although he had two years more to serve under the commission. In a speech to the senate the Georgia senator urged an investigation of the procedure by the senate postoffice committee. Senator Harris referred to charges that Howe had been guilty of political activity by permitting a cartoon to be posted showing a snarled man above a statement, "He wanted a change and he got it."

SHORT LINE MEN MEET HERE TODAY

last few years many of the most important short line railroads in the state have been abandoned and the general short line now face discontinuance, according to a statement by H. J. Quincy, chairman of the legislative committee.

"This is a campaign to prevent Georgia from taking a step backward," Mr. Quincy said. "The short line railroads of the state are of vital importance to hundreds of thousands of Georgians and their abandonment would cause ruin to a large number of people. All these lines want a fair treatment but in the past they have not obtained this, due largely to their lack of organization. We hope to organize a compact working association which will aid the short lines to obtain remedial legislation and to obtain help in other sources."

At a recent meeting held in Atlanta, Mr. Henderson was elected president of the association and Mr. Quincy was named as chairman of the legislative committee. Other members of the legislative committee are State Senator Mansour, of Jonesboro, and J. D. Lovett, representative in the legislature from Berrien county. J. W. Orliey, of Quitman, is first vice president; T. J. Phillips, Moultrie, second vice president, and H. H. Hill, Ocala, secretary.

and the public has known it as such ever since he proposed it.

Differ on Name.
Alderman Davis suggested that if Mr. Watkins didn't want it labeled the "Watkins" plan it might be christened the "League of Women Voters' plan." Councilman Couch said that better still it could be called the Raoul charter.

After considerable debate on both sides, a measure to term the charter the "Watkins, or Atlanta plan charter," was accepted by the author and adopted by council.

The report of the Grady probe committee expressed regret at the hospital's failure to notify the family of Mrs. Charles A. Schultz of her death until thirteen hours after it occurred, but fixed the blame "somewhere between the hospital and the police department," adding the belief that the unfortunate incident arose out of the fact that the police department is being used as a messenger service of the hospital.

It was recommended that the police no longer be called upon to do messenger service for Grady, and that the hospital management provide its own service.

Other Complaints.
"Several other complaints were brought to the attention of the committee," stated the report, "but the evidence produced at the hearings affected the efficiency or inefficiency of the medical staff, and while they all were regrettable, we believe that the mistakes made were comparatively few and that the medical staff of Grady hospital will rank equal or superior to the medical staff of any hospital in a city of which we have any knowledge."

Business management of the institution under Superintendent Steve R. Johnston was complimented. The committee reported that some mistakes had been made, but said that, generally speaking, the hospital has been run in a "thorough and efficient manner."

Superintendent Johnston was advised to impress upon his entire staff the necessity of courtesy to the general public, and advised to have someone to be responsible when he is absent from the hospital.

Withdraws His Fight.
Councilman J. R. Nutting, after he succeeded in getting a favorable report from the council schools' committee at a meeting Saturday on his resolution to name a consulting engineer on the school program, withdrew his fight against the 6 per cent architect fee.

Some of the children cared for by Sheltering Arms.

of the city will be posted this morning with Atlanta girls and women ready to sing and citizens as they wind their way to offices and stores, proceeds of the day going toward maintenance of the Sheltering Arms day nurseries here.

Every office building in the downtown section will be thoroughly canvassed by the army of fair solicitors who will endeavor to raise funds for the upkeep of the organization during the coming year.

The Sheltering Arms depend entirely upon its annual tag day, through which money is raised to maintain the nurseries, the John Barclay, the Osgood Sanders, the Cornelia Moore and the Gate City branches.

More than 500 Atlanta society club women, debutantes, school girls and others comprise the organization which has been perfected this year by H. P. West, president of the Sheltering Arms organization. Through the activity of the organization during the day, little difficulty is anticipated in raising several thousand dollars.

Committees headed by their respective chairmen will be stationed at the following places:

Terminal station, Mrs. L. L. Hallett; Healy building, Mrs. George A. Wight; Ponce de Leon apartments, Miss Annie Evans; Jacob's Pharmacy, on Marietta street, Mrs. M. Greer; Boys' High school, Mrs. E. E. Black, Jr.; Winfield hotel, Mrs. E. E. Black, Jr.; Conally building, Mrs. J. W. Goldsmith, Jr.; J. P. Allen's store, Mrs. J. P. Allen; Richmond hotel, Mrs. W. S. Ekins; Deatur, Mrs. C. J. Metz; Candier building, Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale; Kooly store, Miss Corbie Vancchi; East Lake, Mrs. Scott Hudson; Lizzetti, Whitlock store, Mrs. Charlotte Center; Brookwood station, Mrs. Lawrence Wilk; of charge to the city. The offer was commended and accepted.

Roberts & Co. will act jointly with A. Ten Eyck Brown, supervising architect, to see to a proper standardization of all engineering features of the school building program.

In case of a disagreement between the consulting engineer and the supervising architect, the chairman of the schools committee of the bond commission will act as umpire.

Services of Robert & Co. will not apply to the Boys' High school and Girls' High school, as the bond commission has already arranged for the engineering work at these institutions.

Probe Rental Returns.
Councilman Fred C. Woodall was author of the resolution to probe the rental returns from the public market on the school program, withdrew his fight against the 6 per cent architect fee.

Text of Russo-German Treaty as Consummated

Genoa, April 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Russo-German treaty, signed on Sunday at Happon by George Tchitcherine and Dr. Walter Rathenau contains the following provision:

Article One.

"(A) The German and Russian governments have agreed to settle war-time questions on the following basis: The German government and the Russian republic reciprocally renounce reimbursement of war expenses as well as reimbursement of war damages suffered by their subjects in the war territories because of military measures, including requisitions carried out in the enemy's country. Likewise the two contracting parties renounce reimbursement of civil damages caused by the so-called exceptional laws or by coercive measures by state authorities."

"(B) All legal relations concerning questions of public or private law, resulting from the state of war, including the question of merchant ships acquired by either side during the war shall be settled on a basis of reciprocity."

"(C) Germany and Russia mutually renounce the repayment of expenses caused by prisoners of war, in the same way as the reich renounces repayment of expenses caused by the internment of soldiers of the Russian army. The Russian government renounces payment of the sum Germany has derived from the sale of Russian army material transported into Germany."

Article Two.

"Germany renounces all claims resulting from the enforcement of the laws and measures of the soviet republic as they have affected German nationals or their private rights or to see how the terms of the treaty can be altered.

France is making no effort to conceal her indignation and chagrin, and it is feared she may move to withdraw from the conference on the ground that no work can possibly come of it in view of the Russo-German developments.

Members of the French delegation are alarmed at the situation, fearing that a dangerous Russo-German bloc has been formed which can thrive independently of the rest of Europe, possibly to the point where it will be a menace to the security of France.

Some experts studying the new treaty believed its most favored nation clause is in flat conflict with the provisions of the Versailles treaty, which extends to the allies and special privileges Germany may receive from any treaty.

An interesting feature of the situation is the mysterious silence which has prevailed in German quarters during the negotiations. Germany, it is generally agreed, quietly stole a march while the allies were bickering over the very points which Germany threw overboard in making her agreement with Russia—the cancellation of war debts and claims for damages due to nationalization of property by the soviets. This concession is in direct conflict with the policy of the allies, Lloyd George having already told the Russians that the allies would not renounce such claims.

However, while the allies may be able to prevent carrying out of this feature, it is impossible to see how they can effect a nullification of the major part of the treaty.

Russians Defiant.
The Russians are manifesting a markedly changed attitude—almost of defiance—following conclusion of the treaty. They know now they can go back to Moscow and report that they got something at Genoa regardless of what the allies do. They insist, however, that the treaty was negotiated outside of the conference proper and has no connection with it. Nevertheless it will be impossible for the conference to ignore the treaty.

Rakowski, who acts as soviet spokesman in press conferences, frankly intimated that the Russian reply to the allied ultimatum will not be the unequivocal statement which the allies had demanded. Instead, it will consist of fresh arguments sustaining the Russian viewpoint. He stated that the delegation's telegram to Moscow neither asked plenary powers nor instructions, which he said the delegation already possesses; but merely called for information with which to support Tchitcherine's counter claims.

Will Refute Debts.

"Russia will recognize the pre-war debts only on condition that the allies recognize the principle of reciprocity, and allow us to offset our claims against them as regards war debts," Rakowski declared. "We regard the war debts as subsidies which the allies granted Russia for aiding in a common enterprise from which Russia later withdrew, leaving the allies all the profits therefrom. We asked nothing out of the war and got nothing. What is spent is spent. The Russian people will never recognize the war claims that the allies were recognizing our war claims that Tchitcherine agreed to recognition of the principle of reciprocity on that condition that we accepted the Cannes principles."

Allied delegates will meet Wednesday to examine a hastily prepared report of the judicial commission as to whether the treaty conflicts with the Versailles treaty.

The attitude of the French delegation was epitomized by M. Colrat, who declared that he had cancelled his engagement to meet with the third commission "as at present no one wants to sit on the same commission with Germans and Russians."

Based On Reciprocity.

The new pact is based on a complete recognition of the principle of reciprocity, and makes possible the highest degree of economic co-operation between the two nations.

"The negotiations for the Russian-German treaty re-establishing commercial and diplomatic relations which was concluded today were begun several months ago," the Russian delegation said in an official statement. "The fact that it was finally signed at Genoa does not indicate a tendency to separate from the other powers. The treaty is based on complete recognition of the principle for which we have contended here. It sets aside the Brest-Litovsk treaty and places both peoples on a basis of complete equality rendering possible a common co-operative effort that will effect the highest economic development of both countries."

The treaty was definitely signed at 8 o'clock Sunday night, according to an official German statement.

MANY ENGLISH WORDS COME FROM ARABIA

Through the crusades Europe came into contact with Arabia, and gained immense profit from the intercourse which followed, with a people more highly civilized than its own inhabitants. It must not be forgotten that the Arabs in Asia and the Moors in Spain kept the sacred torch of learning alight while Europe still groped in the darkness of semi-barbarism.

To the Arabs we are indebted for the preservation of Aristotle, and for much of our knowledge of Grecian astronomy and medicine, which reached Europe through translations from Arabic into Latin. Many of our current English words came direct from the Arabic, such as zero, almanac, algebra, cipher, nadir, zenith, alkali, camphor, alcohol and amber.

These words, with their pronunciation and definition, are all to be found in The New Universities Dictionary, now being distributed by this paper almost as a gift to its readers. It contains, in addition to the dictionary proper, a condensed encyclopaedia of information for every-day use. Our coupon in today's paper explains how this valuable book may be obtained.—(Adv.)

HEAD OF CIVITANS BUSINESS OPTIMIST

Because it has taught business men to eliminate waste in the business world has been of great benefit to the nation, according to F. A. Wilson-Lawrence, vice president of the Union Carbide and Battery company, of Long Island, N. Y., and president of the New York Civitan club, who addressed the local Civitan club Monday at a luncheon given in his honor at the Capital City club.

Among the principal items of waste, he said, are injudiciously spent advertising appropriations, and the time of salesmen. He asserted that because of the depressed conditions the leading corporations of the nation have learned to plan their advertising campaigns with as much care as they would plan the erection of large buildings.

Speaker Optimistic.
The speaker was very optimistic, and declared that the country had not gone to the dogs, as the pessimists would have the world believe. He said that in New York one of the highest grade pianos on the market is selling just as fast as during the war.

"Theater seats in New York selling for $5 are hard to get unless they are reserved four or five days ahead," he said. "More automobiles of a certain make were sold last month than during the whole of 1921."

"When our concern recently placed a $4 flashlight on the market we believed the people had money and would buy them. In three months there had been sold as many as we had expected to sell in eight months, and it was the highest priced flashlight ever placed on the market."

Mr. Wilson-Lawrence said that one of the most startling developments of the business world of the past quarter century was the radio. While in the south he is studying the possibilities for marketing radio supplies, and he said that one of his objects in visiting this section is to determine what the south is going to do with radio.

Selling Batteries.
The Union Carbide and Battery company, he said, is now selling monthly as many radio batteries as their factories had planned to make during the entire year. Sixty-five per cent of the tremendous radio battery business is in New York and New Jersey, he said.

Mr. Wilson-Lawrence left Atlanta Monday night to attend a convention of southern hardware jobbers in New Orleans. While here he was a guest of W. G. Mills, southern manager of the National Carbon Works, a subsidiary of the Union Carbide and Battery company. He is being accompanied on his southern trip by J. R. Crawford, general sales manager.

Invited to meet Mr. Wilson-Lawrence were several prominent Atlantans, including T. C. Law, president of the Rotary club; Dr. W. T. Stuchell, president of the Masonic club; J. S. Kennedy, president of the Kiwanis club; E. P. King, secretary of the Scottish Rite; George Lowman, president of the Ad club, and others. Julian Boehm, president of the Civitan club, was toastmaster.

POSITION OF HOWARD TO BE LEFT VACANT

Governor Thomas W. Hardwick will not appoint a successor to Judge G. H. Howard, who resigned Saturday as special counsel for the state highway commission, but will leave the place, unfilled until the legislature decides this summer whether or not the office will be abolished, it was announced Monday by the governor.

This course was adopted by the governor after he had written to John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway commission, asking if it would be necessary to name a successor for the short time intervening before the legislature meets. Chairman Holder wrote the governor he believed the duties could be discharged by the attorney general pending definite action in the matter by the legislature.

In outlining his views on the situation in his letter to Chairman Holder, the governor said: "The special attorney for the state highway board, Judge G. H. Howard, has tendered me his resignation effective May 30, next. This date, you will observe, is less than 30 days before the convening of the next session of our general assembly."

"I have always been inclined to the opinion that it was not necessary for the state highway board to have a special attorney and that the expense of such an officer could well be saved to the taxpayers of the state, by providing that the attorney-general should give the state highway board such advice and legal service as it might find necessary. I suggested at the last session of the general assembly an investigation of this question by that body, but the general assembly did not change the law providing for this office, consequently, Judge Howard's appointment."

"Under the circumstances above outlined, I am very much inclined not to appoint a successor to Judge Howard as special attorney for the state highway board, until the legislature shall meet and I can again submit to that body the question as to whether it is necessary to retain this office. Of course, if the legislature should again fail to abolish it, it will be my duty to make the appointment, under the law."

"Having very little intimate acquaintance with the details of the workings of your board, however, I do not care to take the step indicated in this letter until I have advised with you about it and have your views with reference to the necessity or lack of necessity of an immediate appointment."

Hall to Speak.

Thomasville, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Joe Hill Hall, of Macon, is scheduled to speak in Thomasville Tuesday. Mr. Hall will speak on "Taxes and Tax Burdens."

WARM AND FAIR WEATHER TUESDAY, SAYS FORECASTER

Warm and fair weather is not far distant according to the prediction of the local weather bureau Monday. According to C. F. von Herrmann, the weather will be warmer Tuesday with possibly of little rain. The temperature was 56 degree Monday morning and continues to rise throughout the day.

The weather Tuesday will be about 10 degree warmer than Monday, according to the prediction.

Mr. von Herrmann said there is a disturbance over the state of Michigan which is likely to cause some precipitation in Atlanta and Georgia but declared that the weather will be warmer and fair and clear skies will be seen in a short time.

Inspection Fees On Oil Companies Declared Valid

The decision of the supreme court of the United States rendered yesterday in the case of the Texas company against J. J. Brown, commissioner, et al., confirms a substantial victory won by the state of Georgia upon the trial of the original issue in the United States court for the northern district of Georgia, and saves to the state revenues amounting to approximately half a million dollars per annum.

The litigation was instituted by a bill in equity filed by the Texas company, alleging that J. J. Brown, as commissioner of agriculture, and the oil inspectors operating under him, were illegally exacting inspection fees under the protection of a Georgia statute which authorized the collection of such fees, but which statute was alleged to be unconstitutional because in conflict with the federal constitution.

The suit was filed by Rosser, Slaton, Phillips & Hopkins, who presented to the court a decision from the supreme court of the United States, which had declared a similar statute of the state of Washington unconstitutional for the same alleged reason, and a restraining order was issued prohibiting the collection of inspection fees above the actual cost of inspection.

Employ Special Counsel.
The firm of Brewster, Howell & Heyman and Mark Bolding were employed as special counsel for the commissioner of agriculture, by direction of the state, and the case was argued before Judges Sibley, Evans and Walker of the United States court.

In the meantime, other oil companies doing business in Georgia joined the plaintiff in the litigation, and the court ordered that, pending the litigation all fees collected by the department of agriculture for inspecting oils in this state, in excess of the actual cost of inspection should be deposited in local banks, subject to the order of the court upon the conclusion of the litigation.

Upon the trial of the case, counsel for the plaintiff companies contended that while the state had the right to inspect oil intended for use within the state, and to charge the actual expense of such inspection, the Georgia legislature had established a scale of inspection fees that was producing an annual net revenue of several hundred thousand dollars in excess of inspection, expenses, and that under the guise of inspection, the state was raising revenue from interstate commerce and appropriating the proceeds, by statute, to the maintenance of agricultural and educational institutions within the state.

Upon the conclusion of the trial, the court rendered a divided judgment, the majority opinion concurred in by Judges Sibley and Evans, sustaining the contention of the state of Georgia that the statutes and practices complained of by the plaintiffs were not in violation of the constitution, and the minority opinion of Judge Walker holding that the plaintiff companies were entitled to the injunction prayed for on the ground that the statutes, as enforced, imposed an illegal burden on interstate commerce.

The Texas company and its associate plaintiffs appealed from the majority decision to the supreme court of the United States, and obtained a supersedeas until the case should be finally decided by that court.

The argument upon the hearing in the supreme court of the United States was conducted by ex-Governor John M. Slaton, for the firm of Rosser, Slaton, Phillips & Hopkins, attorneys for the Texas company and associated plaintiffs, and the argument in behalf of the state of Georgia was presented by Mark Bolding, for the firm of Brewster, Howell & Heyman, attorneys for J. J. Brown, commissioner, et al.

The decision rendered on yesterday terminates the litigation; confirms the right of the agricultural department to continue the collection of oil inspection fees under the scale established by the Georgia statute, and immediately releases for the use by the state of Georgia, an accumulated fund which was impounded by the supersedeas during the litigation, and which is estimated in excess of $300,000.

Man's Leg Broken In Crash of Car And Motorcycle

Ira McDavid, of 84 Metropolitan avenue, sustained a broken right leg and severe bruises and lacerations about the body Monday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile driven by A. W. Sommerfield, of 220 Ponce de Leon avenue, at the corner of Forsyth and Hunter streets. He was carried to the Grady hospital.

No case was made by the police at the request of both parties as the accident is believed to have been unavoidable. The motorcycle struck the automobile when it rounded the curve at Hunter street while going into Forsyth. Both the automobile and motorcycle were badly damaged.

J. T. Jordan, of DeKalb county, who was riding in an automobile with D. G. Ellington, also of DeKalb county, was injured Monday afternoon when the automobile turned over on the Peachtree road near Sunny-side.

He was taken to Grady hospital, where physicians said he was under the influence of whisky and that they believe he received internal injuries. Both Jordan and Ellington were hurried about 30 feet from the car when it overturned while going more than 40 miles an hour, according to witnesses.

Ellington, who escaped injury, and who was driving the car, was arrested by Lieutenant Oliver, of county police, and County Policeman Butler. He was taken to the Fulton county jail, charged with operating a machine while drunk and with speeding.

ATTEMPT TO KILL LEADER STIRS ERIN

Dublin, April 17.—Ireland is in turmoil over the attempted assassination of Michael Collins, head of the provisional government. Free State forces have unquestionably been strengthened by the attack, many holding that the republicans overstepped the line in attempting to assassinate one of Ireland's popular heroes.

Collins and Griffith are being urged to take drastic action, their friends believing De Valera will not dare countenance an attempt at assassination of his rivals.

Collins was unscathed Monday morning after his narrow escape, and was not attended by any unusual guard. He resumed his regular routine work at Free State headquarters.

"Damned Lie," Says Collins.
"It is difficult to know just the intentions of my assailants," Collins said in an interview. "I think they intended to kidnap me. I do not believe they intended to kill. One in particular aimed at me three or four times. I asked him if he knew me. He replied he did not. I asked him why he was doing this, and he replied, 'On orders from the executive.' He is now in jail and will be prosecuted. I think I wounded one of the hand."

Art O'Connor, insurgent leader, denied there had been any attempt to assassinate Collins. He said shots were fired from one of the Collins cars.

"That's a damned lie," Collins said, when told of the assertion.

Free Staters Strengthened.
The strength of the Free State forces was further increased by the successful meeting staged by Art Griffith, head of the dail eireann at Sligo. Elaborate military precautions were taken to overawe the republican insurgents.

Free State troops lining the route from the station to the main square where Griffith spoke from a motor lorry. Republicans had occupied all halls, but they did not dare to interfere with Griffith in view of the precautions taken despite their previously announced determination to prevent the meeting at all costs.

The meeting was viewed in the light of a straight-out showdown with the Free Staters victorious.

Leaders of the republican extremists declared tonight the attack on Collins was unintentional and that he became implicated only because he happened into the vicinity of one of several attacks.

NATIONAL PARTIES BEGIN CAMPAIGNS

the victorious forces to have easy sailing. And there are those who believe the Small-Thompson faction will support the democratic ticket in Illinois rather than see their enemies win the congressional elections.

State Campaign Factor.
The state factional war has a national aspect when considered from this angle, especially when it is remembered that Thompson is largely responsible for Harding.

So the state campaigns are to be taken into account in looking forward to the elections in the fall, when the republican party in the first great test of the Harding administration must go before the country for indorsement of its record. A republican success will be acclaimed as approval of the Harding role of office, and defeat termed repudiation.

Knowing this, both national headquarters are "up to their ears" in the pending campaign. They are keeping hands off the nominating primaries, ready to support the nominees to their full strength in the general election.

Political Calendar.
The political calendar for the nominations, preliminary to the country-wide election November 7, follows:

Alabama, primary August 8; ten representatives.
Arizona, primary September 12; one representative, senator to succeed Henry F. Ashurst, democrat.

3,123 Additions To City Churches Made by Revival

A total of 3,123 additions to the 120 Protestant churches of Atlanta, which completed Sunday the most successful city-wide evangelistic revival ever held in Atlanta, was contained in incomplete reports at a meeting Monday morning in Wesley Memorial church of representatives of the different denominations participating in the movement.

With reports of final figures yet forthcoming from more than 50 percent of the churches, it is expected that the number of additions will exceed more than twice the number compiled through Monday. These figures are divided as follows:

Additions to Churches.
Methodists, 918 additions, including professions of faith from 617 and admissions by certificate of 301; Baptist, 1,230, of which 726 are professions of faith and 504 by letter; Presbyterians, 193 by professions of faith and 134 by letter; Episcopalians, 192 confirmations; and a total of 405 additions from the colored Baptist and Methodist churches.

Dr. Edward Orme Elyan, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, presided at the meeting. Reports were submitted by Marion Jackson, representing the Presbyterians; Dr. W. H. LaPrade, Methodists; and the Rev. W. H. Majors, representing the Baptists.

Owing to the continuation of revival services in a number of churches, it will require two weeks longer for a complete report of the campaign, showing the total number of additions obtained by the various denominations, leaders declared.

College Park Methodist.
College Park Methodist church, of which Dr. W. H. LaPrade, Sr., is pastor, began a promising revival Easter Sunday to continue for two weeks. Rev. W. G. Crawley, pastor of St. Paul Methodist church, is doing the preaching.

East Point Methodist church, under the leadership of the Rev. C. A. Norton, was splendidly organized for a revival which began Sunday. Dr. James H. Eakes, presiding elder of the South Atlanta district, in which this church is located, says, "The revival had already begun a week preceding its formal start on Easter Sunday, due to the pastor's fervent spirit and efficient organization." Rev. Harry S. Allen, a general evangelist of the Southern Methodist church, who is especially well known in south Georgia, is doing the preaching, while the singing is in charge of the McKay sisters, of Virginia. The meeting will continue for two weeks.

Another revival which began Sunday was that at Calvary Methodist church, Rev. H. S. Smith, pastor. The meeting starts most promisingly, there being a most unanimous response to the proposition made by the preacher Sunday. Rev. J. O. Brand, who is doing the preaching, is a most effective pastor-evangelist of this city.

The pastor, Rev. H. S. Smith, has just returned from leading a revival campaign in Woodlawn church, Augusta, which was a very gratifying success, there being a total of 70 members added to the church, 70 of whom were received on confession of faith.

Park Street Methodist.
At Park Street Methodist church a very successful two weeks' revival came to its close Sunday. Dr. W. H. Shelden, of Emory university, did the preaching, while the singing was in charge of the well known evangelistic singer and composer, Charlie D. Tillman. Dr. S. E. Wiggins, the pastor, announces that 50 will be received on profession of faith, 25 on certificate and that as many as 25 more are certain to be added to this number within the next two weeks. Dr. Wiggins was elected first alternate to the general conference at the last session of the north Georgia conference at Augusta, and, therefore, upon the resignation of Dr. Joseph A. Sharp, delegate-elect, will be seated in the delegation of the north Georgia conference.

State Tobacco Crop Condition Best in Years

BY JOHN L. HERRING.
Tifton, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—The south Georgia tobacco crop is the best he has ever seen at this season of the year, is the statement today of E. L. King, tobacco agent for the Southern railway.

Mr. King said that every tobacco grower "is trying to do his best; more care is given to soil preparation; more fertilizer was used and the plants were put out earlier."

Plants are healthier and in fine shape, and Mr. King asserted that he had rather see the crop in this condition with the present acreage than see 10,000 acres under conditions prevailing in past years.

One of the hardest things for the amateur grower to understand is the importance of what he regards as small things. One of these is to give tobacco uniform distance and enough distance to insure quality—from 24 to 30 inches, according to soil, the shorter distance for poor land.

Successful tobacco growing consists of doing a number of little things in the right way; for these little things are not so small when the price of the crop is considered.

Mr. King is confident that south Georgia will produce 8,000,000 pounds of tobacco this year. From Tifton south the acreage is larger; from Tifton north it is smaller. The increase around Blackshear is about 40 percent, around Nashville 20, while there is a decrease around Abbeville and Rochelle.

Train Hits Auto.
Murfreesboro, Tenn., April 17.—A southbound Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway freight train today knocked the automobile of Raymond Sanders, 40, from its path at a grade crossing, probably fatally injuring Mrs. Sanders and her two-year-old baby and badly bruising four other occupants of the machine.

OUR PRESENCE NEEDED.

Each day it becomes more and more apparent that the success of the Genoa conference is jeopardized by the absence of American representation.

In declaring the other day that his aim at the Genoa parley is to bring into being a pact among the thirty-four nations represented, agreeing not to invade one another's territories—a pact similar to the four-power treaty negotiated recently at Washington—Premier Lloyd George set forth in a few words the main objective, not only of his well-meaning fellow conferees, but of the league of nations.

But it is universally recognized that as a necessary forerunner to some guarantee there must be some sort of a program worked out to restore European credit and buying power, and to stabilize Europe financially, economically and industrially.

The United States, being in possession of almost one-half of the gold in circulation—the country to which the nations of Europe now at Genoa seeking a solution of their financial and industrial problems, more than $10,000,000,000—would wield a tremendous influence at this international conference.

In fact, this country practically could dominate the conference and dictate the terms of any agreement growing out of it.

But the very fact of our participation—the very fact of our manifestation of good will and friendly interest in European welfare—easily might mean the difference between agreement and disagreement, success and failure, at Genoa.

Considering the importance of our position in the affairs of the world, such a potentially momentous gathering as that at Genoa without the participation of the United States is analogous to a production of "Hamlet" with "the melancholy Dane" missing from the cast.

If this conference fails, the existing financial, industrial and economic uncertainty and chaos in Europe probably will be prolonged indefinitely.

Furthermore, until Europe is stabilized and the world restored to its feet, American industry and American business must continue to suffer from the lack of foreign commerce.

And if it fails its failure will be attributable largely, if not entirely, to our partisan refusal to concern ourselves with the interests and welfare of peoples beyond our own borders.

Speaking of thrift, The Moberly Index tells this one—

"A Joplin man saves all the dirt swept from his office, putting it in a barrel and sending it to a refinery and getting paid for the sweepings. Sometimes the barrel of dirt brings a check for $100 from a Chicago refinery and sometimes a little less. The man is Dr. Charles A. Morsemann, local dentist, who explains that he is impatiently waiting for the day when he can pay his bills with the sweepings."

Mrs. Nelson Insists That Lloyd George Is a Baptist

Editor Constitution: This writer recently thanked you for the brilliant review of Premier Lloyd George, written by the famous novelist, Hall Caine, which appeared in your paper recently. I also stated that Lloyd George was a Baptist and that this fact peculiarly fitted him for fighting democracy's battles, being a Baptist being a synonym for liberty of conscience. I intended the slightest reflection on the other great Protestant denominations. I stated that Lloyd George was a Baptist because Baptist religious papers had repeatedly stated, and as a Baptist Premier Lloyd George was invited to attend the Southern Baptist convention a year ago and replied that he greatly desired doing so, but affairs in England prevented.

I try to be scrupulously accurate in every statement I make, whether it be about Catholics, Jews or Gentiles, but if I make a mistake I am anxious to admit it. Therefore from April 17 that Lloyd George was not a Baptist, I at once withdrew the statement. I am sure that Mr. Caine, editor of The Christian, and Mr. Newton, editor of The Baptist, would not mind my doing so.

The old-time poets sang of "Spring, with that nameless pathos in the air," but the early lawnmower has knocked all that into the ancient cocked hat.

With all the optimistic burglars in evidence, there is no room to doubt the general prosperity of the country.

Apparently Germany spends more time protesting that she can't pay up than she does digging for the money.

Of course it's time to call a halt to the run-runners, but they're going too fast to hear it.

MRS. J. O'KEEFE NELSON.

Sheltering Arms

Day.

Through the long day, and its Till Night brings the Mother's arms.

In world made brighter by them—

Even as a world above.

The sweetest little fellows

Ask for your sheltering love.

II.

The Children of the Kingdom

Not made of earthly hands:

Joy of the world that love them—

Light of the heart that love them—

What greater joy could angels sing?

Than little arms that clasp and cling?

III.

Over them keep Love's shelter

Sure through life's tolling days;

Through the bitter strife of the storms of life

And the stern stern ways.

Give them, in all life's rude alarms,

Your love's wide, Sheltering Arms!

Not an Early Bird.

Writing, in The Independence Examiner, that he "has no use for the early worm business," William Southern says:

"Early to bed and early to rise, Makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise."

"So runs the old saw and some people still quote it with great gusto. I never did believe in any such doctrine. The alarm clock is an abomination. I am not sure that it would be any easier to get up at 8 o'clock than at 6 or 7 and while I do get out and start things going, I don't get any better for it. I suppose my aversion comes down from the time when I had to get up while the stars were just beginning to be dimmed by the approaching splendor of the sun while yet below the horizon. The came the feeding and the taking the milk away from the cows. The only way to know whether you were hitting the bucket or the ground was the way the milk sounded. Those fellows who insist that they like to get up early in the morning, just for the fun of it, are the same fellows who insist that they really like pumpkin pie."

They "Say" Things Then.

In a reminiscence told Tennessee J. Daff contributes this one to his Kansas City Star column—

"The okay was green and yellow, purple, red and black.

With a white patch on his abdomen and a blue streak down his back.

He used to be a common sight in the good old days of yore.

When gentlemen imbibed too much, and he was not so more.

For some wilder, wetter land he faded down the track.

With a white patch on his abdomen and a blue streak down his back."

The Irish Herald says that people who don't play golf can get all the much exercise hunting a house.

STEAMER REPORTS
GREAT MASSACRE

London, April 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—A great fire and massacre at Samsoun on the Black Sea of Asia Minor, were in progress nine days ago when the Italian steamer Barchia left there. The steamer's officers reported on her arrival at Patras, Greece, says an Athens dispatch to the London Times dated Sunday.

When the steamer sailed the large Greek church was ablaze and thousands of Greek women and children were rushing to the water front seeking refuge on steamers.

The Barchia went a wireless to an American warship in neighboring waters urging her to hasten to the rescue.

Muscogee Jury
Refuses Request
Of Judge Munro

Columbus, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Acting on legal advice the Muscogee county grand jury has refused a request of Judge George P. Munro that he be allowed to see a copy of its presentments.

The situation arising from the foreman and chairman of the grand jury's refusal to furnish a copy of the presentments to the judge is causing a sensation.

Judge Munro in his conversation with Frank J. Dudley, foreman, took the position that it was not within the province of the grand jury to indulge in criticism that amounted to effect to advise to him as to how he should run the court. It was stated.

The judge requested that the criticism be eliminated, it is understood. Foreman Dudley took issue with him and the grand jury secured legal advice.

W. H. Dismuke is chairman of the general presentments committee of the grand jury. Judge Munro approached him and asked to see the draft of the presentments, so that he could read them in advance of their being returned formally into court. Mr. Dismuke declined to grant the request.

Negroes Confess
Murder of Macon
Street Car Man

Macon, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Four negroes have been arrested charged with the murder of Conductor-Motorman A. L. Aigood on Christman night last year. Not only has a confession been obtained from one of the arrested, the sheriff said, but a confession also has been obtained, he states, to eleven robberies.

CAPTAIN BALLEW
LAID TO REST

Calhoun, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Captain A. W. Ballew, 52, died at 11 o'clock Saturday evening at his country home near Calhoun. Captain Ballew was a well-known Confederate veteran, having served through the entire Civil War, and a prominent Gordon county planter.

Besides his widow, he is survived by four daughters, Mrs. J. G. Waters and Mrs. John Hagan, of Atlanta; Mrs. Ralph Brown, of Wilmington, N. C.; and Mrs. Fred Legg, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and three sons, Elmo Ballew, of Calhoun; DeWitt Ballew, of Savannah; and Donald Ballew, of Cincinnati, Ohio; also a number of grandchildren, among whom are Walter W. Ballew, of Atlanta; and Mrs. Herbert LaMee, of Miami, Fla., who was formerly Miss Bertha Ballew of Atlanta.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 11 o'clock at Salem church and interment in the churchyard.

In the early nineties a part of Idaho was terrorized by a band of six stage robbers, who, when rounded up at Salmon City, Oct. 4, 1892, were found to be all women dressed in men's clothes.

Catholic Church's Attitude
Towards Schools Is Given

Faith in Loyalty of Teachers Expressed in Letter Written by Father James A. Horton.

In a letter directed Monday to Catholic teachers in the Atlanta public schools in which he expressed faith in their loyalty and sets forth the attitude of the Roman Catholic church towards schools, Father James A. Horton, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, declares it is manifestly unjust to judge the attitude of the church from the isolated expression of individuals within the church.

Father Horton's letter follows: "I have been asked by several of the Catholic teachers in our public schools to outline concisely and clearly the attitude of the Catholic church towards the public schools. They wish this statement in order to present it to their fair-minded friends who deserve to be correctly informed on this subject.

It is manifestly unjust to judge of the attitude of the church from the isolated expression of individuals within the church. Their expressions may often be overzealous and carry a wrong impression. The true attitude of the church is to be learned rather from (1) the regulations passed by the church in regard to the schools, and (2) specially from the application of these regulations in practice.

1. These regulations enjoin Catholics to send their children to Catholic schools, but authorize the bishops to dispense with this duty and to allow Catholics to send their children to non-Catholic schools. They say nothing about state schools, and refer only to schools under the direction of the Catholic church. The fact that bishops throughout the world are authorized to allow Catholic children to attend non-Catholic schools, whenever they may judge it proper, is patent proof that the Catholic church is not hostile to the public or state schools.

2. If any further proof were necessary on this point, it is furnished by the actual practical application of these regulations. As far as this policy and attitude of the Catholic church is worked out in practice, the following undisputed facts are conclusive:

(a). In the United States millions of Catholic children are in the public schools, and neither their parents are deprived, for that reason, of the rights and privileges of the church.

(b). Thousands of Catholic men and women, like yourselves, are teachers in the public schools, rendering loyal and efficient service to the state, and enjoying the same respect and honor as other teachers.

The church allows you to give your time and talents to the service of the schools of the state, and does not regard you as thereby no longer participating in any phase of Catholic life.

A., B. & A. Strike
Cases Postponed
By Solicitor Wall

Fitzgerald, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—The cases against 23 striking employees of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad charged with interfering with the railroad's business, and seven strikers charged with the murder of W. T. Reed, engineer, who was shot July 5, last, will not be tried this term, according to an announcement in court Monday morning by Solicitor General J. B. Wall.

The case of O. C. Fairfield, also indicted jointly with these for the murder of Reed, and to which he was said to have made confession, which subsequently he repudiated, was also deferred to the term of court in July as the repudiation of his confession by Fairfield is said to have left the State without any evidence against him.

The tension between the strikers and their opponents has almost entirely disappeared, and it is not thought any further trouble will arise between the two factions. The strikers continue to hold their daily meetings and are determined to hold the strike in its present status.

MAXWELL ARRESTED AND BOOZE IS SEIZED

J. W. Maxwell, 78 Ivy street, was arrested Monday night by Motorcyclists Officers L. W. Evans and P. L. Williams of a charge of violating the prohibition law. The officers arrested Maxwell as he was driving a high-powered automobile on Piedmont avenue at Edgewood avenue. The officers searched the automobile and found 30 gallons of corn whiskey which they seized. Later in the night they arrested E. E. Parker, 133 Cameron street, owner of the car. He was charged with knowingly permitting his automobile to be used for the transportation of whisky, but denied the allegation. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

Dr. Eddy Will Speak Tuesday
On Evangelism

Dr. Sherwood Eddy, noted Christian leader and author, will preside over an all-day conference on evangelism at the First Baptist church Tuesday, under the auspices of the Evangelical Ministers' association, which has appointed a committee to assist Dr. Eddy.

This committee consists of John J. Eagan, M. M. Davie, Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, Dr. Ashby Jones, C. A. Titus and Dr. Charles W. Daniel. The sessions will begin promptly at 10 o'clock, and will last through the day, closing with the evening services which begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Dr. Eddy is recognized as one of the most prominent international evangelists, he having spent more than 30 years in foreign countries, including Asia, Turkey, Egypt and other foreign countries. Since 1913 he has concentrated his efforts in the Near Eastern countries which are undergoing a severe period of starvation and want.

In addition to his evangelistic work, Dr. Eddy has written a number of books which are popularly known throughout this country and Asia. Dr. Eddy's subject at the morning session will be "Evangelism and Class Struggles," while his subject Tuesday evening will be "What Evangelism Should Include." This conference is considered one of the most important religious gatherings of the year. Leaders from every evangelical church in the city have been extended an invitation to attend.

KEY FURNISHED TO TREASURE HOUSE

How Best Aid to Wonderful Information May Be Secured.

What vast and mighty treasures of words full of rich meaning lie locked up in our language—hidden away from common use, and enjoyed only by learned few. It is as if, possessing the mineral wealth of Mexico, mined, smelted and ready for the mint, we turned scornfully aside, revealing in a voluntary poverty.

A dictionary constitutes the treasure house of a language. As a people, we needlessly deprive ourselves of the help at our command. In our daily tasks, not one of which can be performed without the use of words, we possess only the most primitive tools, when we might be equipped with the keenest and most efficient. If the dictionary be the barred and bolted treasure house we have mentioned, then the coupon we print daily in this paper is its key. For we have thus made it possible for everyone to own a modern, first-class dictionary.—(Adv.)

GRAND CHANCELLOR OF K. OF P. WILL ATTEND MEETING

An special program has been arranged by the members of Delphi Lodge 68, K. of P., for their regular meeting tonight at their fraternity hall at 423 1/2 Marietta street.

The purpose is to organize a convention for the fifth district. W. V. Hanier, grand chancellor, of the grand lodge of Georgia, is making a special trip from his home in Millen, Ga., to be present on this occasion, and deliver an address on the importance of such a gathering for this district. He also will present to Jesse M. Wood, a past grand chancellor's badge.

Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, one of the ablest speakers of the city, and a member of this lodge, will be present and take part in the program.

James W. Austin, past grand chancellor of the grand lodge of Georgia, also will be present and speak.

Judge W. D. Puckett is in charge of the program.

PARK IN WEST END
OFFERED TO ATLANTA

Offers have been made to the city of property lying between Atwood and Hopkins streets and Oak street and Lucile avenue to be used for park purposes, according to R. E. Barnes, of 359 Oak street, who is taking a prominent part in the move to provide the neighborhood with a park and playground.

People in the vicinity have purchased adjacent lots which total approximately two acres in extent. The deeds to the land have been tendered the city on conditions that the land be turned into a park and playground.

The park commissioners of the city recently made an investigation of the details of the plan, and stated that they would ask for an appropriation if the deed can be secured. Walter A. Guest, of 153 Atrwood street, is getting up the funds for the park project.

HUGH P. QUIN DIES
IN MACON MONDAY

Macon, Ga., April 17.—(Special.)—Hugh P. Quinn, 75, died at his residence, 104 Lamar street, at noon Monday after a short illness. For many years Mr. Quinn was a prominent citizen of Washington, Ga., where he was engaged in the insurance and insurance business, but has been making his home in Macon for the past two years.

He was the father of Langdon C. Quinn, prominent insurance man, and Robert S. Quinn, assistant publicity agent for the Southern railway system, both of Atlanta, in addition to whom he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Louie DuBoise Quinn; two other sons, Hugh Wallace Quinn, manager of the Macon branch of the Southern Cotton Oil Co., and Louis D. Quinn, of Charleston, S. C.; and by five daughters, Mrs. D. G. Wayne, of Macon; Mrs. Herndon Newman, of Newmarket, N. H.; Mrs. Austin Moore, of Washington, Tenn.; Mrs. Ralph Dunaway, of Memphis, Tenn.; and Miss Helen Quinn, of Washington.

Mr. Quinn was born in Floyd county, the son of the late Dr. Langdon Cheves Quinn, and as a mere boy served in the Confederate army. Immediately after the war he moved to Washington, where he married and where his family was reared. He was a member of the Methodist church and took a leading part in church and other activities in Wilkes county.

In addition to the members of his immediate family he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Rufus L. Foreman, of Washington; Mrs. LaFayette Chapp, of Lithonia, and Mrs. Lillie B. McCarver, of Birmingham, and by a large family consisting of the funeral will be held in Washington Tuesday afternoon at 6 o'clock.

SCHOOL IS URGED FOR CAPITOL VIEW

Extension of the Stewart avenue car line from Dill avenue to Sylvan road and the erection in the Capitol View section of one of the new schools to be built with money obtained in the recent bond issue will be strongly urged following action taken at a meeting of the Tenth Ward Improvement club held Monday night.

The movement to work for the extension of the car line was suggested recently and a committee was named Monday night to confer with the Georgia Railway and Power company officials about the extension. It is also planned to obtain the consent of the street railway company to double track the car line on Dill avenue before the permanent pavement is laid on that street. The committee named to take charge of the movement is composed of W. W. Scott, Carl Dolvin, Solon Johnson and J. R. Smith. The cooperation of other civic organizations in the movement will be sought.

At the meeting a resolution was adopted unanimously calling for the erection in the Capitol View section of one of the new schools with the money to be obtained in the bond issue. It was pointed out that the present school building is entirely inadequate to take care of the children and that many of the pupils are being taught in a nearby church. A meeting to discuss the school question will be held Monday night, May 1, at a site for the new school will be discussed at the next meeting. The owners of the Sylvan Hills subdivision recently opened have offered to give the city a small one of several acres for the new building. At the next meeting the question of whether to build the school on the present site, which is a small one, or whether to accept the offer of the Sylvan Hills company will be discussed.

Much enthusiasm was displayed over both the proposals. It was pointed out that the Capitol View section is entitled to one of the new schools and that every effort should be made to have the bond commission or the school board provide for the erection of the school.

The school committee is composed of W. C. Cooper, F. P. Pressley, Carl Dolvin, J. R. Smith and W. W. Scott. L. E. Gillespie presided and Mrs. M. Nibley served as secretary.

NEGRO FATALLY SHOT BY NIGHT WATCHMAN

Leck Johnson, a negro whose address is not known by the police, was shot and fatally wounded at 7:30 o'clock Monday night by Walter Johnson, negro, who lives at 112 West Pine street. Leck Johnson was taken to Grady hospital and died a few minutes after his arrival there. The shooting occurred at the corner of Bell street and Auburn avenue.

Walter Johnson was arrested by officers McDaniel and Crankshaw. He is night watchman at the negro Odd Fellows' building on Auburn avenue. He asserted that Leck Johnson came in the day had attempted to cut him. He said he met Leck Johnson at 7:30 o'clock and that he shot him in self-defense. A coroner's inquest will be held Tuesday morning.

MEN'S ASSOCIATION OF CHURCH TO MEET

The first meeting of the Men's association of the West End Presbyterian church since the election of new officers will be held Tuesday night. Several short addresses will follow a dinner which begins at 6:45 o'clock. Newly-elected officers are: Fred M. Dorn, president; J. C. Landers, and George A. McGaughey, vice presidents; D. O. Coghill, secretary, and L. A. Swann, treasurer. Past presidents are J. S. Boardman, Fred Winburn, A. J. Merrill, A. W. Falkenburg, B. P. Strickland, J. E. Whitman and P. L. T. Beavers.

Popularity Contest.

The popularity contest, under the direction of Carrie Taylor, and for the benefit of the Atlanta Urban League, will come to a close tonight at the Butler Street Y. M. C. A., at 8 o'clock.

A feature of the evening's entertainment will be a competitive ball game. Four prizes will be offered in the popularity contest. The contestants are: Salema Jones, Oretta Brooks, Virginia Belle Hodges, C. Ethel Ross.

DR. WALT HOLCOMB GIVES RADIO TALK

Noted Evangelist Delivers Short Sermon From WGM on "Life After Death."

The first of a series of ten-minute radio talks by evangelists and Atlanta pastors participating in the city-wide revival campaign was presented from WGM last night, when Dr. Walt Holcomb, evangelist, delivered a short sermon for the wireless service of The Atlanta Constitution.

Each evening of this week some evangelist or pastor will deliver one of these sermons at 6 o'clock. Dr. Holcomb's subject last night was "Life After Death." He took his text from the seventh, eighth, ninth and fourteenth verses of the fourteenth chapter of Job: "For there is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, shall it sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not cease. Though the root thereof wax old in the earth, and the ground thereof be covered with ice, yet through the scent of the water it will bud and bring forth boughs like a plant."

"If a man die, shall he live again?" Dr. Holcomb's sermon was along the line of the Easter theme and was appropriate, coming the day after Easter.

Continuing, Dr. Holcomb said: "In the latter part of the twenty-fourth verse of the twelfth chapter of John, Jesus says: 'But if it die it brings forth much fruit.' He suggests life after death. In the twenty-fifth verse of the same chapter, He says, 'He that hateth his life in this world, shall keep it unto life eternal.' He plainly indicates life after death."

"Life after death has been studied by the great philosophers of the world. The Greek philosopher saw it in symmetry and balance as suggested by his ideal of this life. The Roman statesman gives a place to it in his discussions. All the great religions find a place for it in their system of thought. Study all the great religions of the world from antiquity of the east to the present civilization of the west, and you will discover its place in these religions."

Tells of Friend's Death. In closing his sermon, Dr. Holcomb told of the death of his dear friend, the Rev. Sam P. Jones, noted evangelist. He declared that he firmly believed as he held his friend's head in his hands that the "marvelous gifts and graces of Sam P. Jones had been gathered to God, and would find higher and larger spheres for service and usefulness than had been known in this world."

"Surely," he said, "death can not destroy the mind and its powers as it does the body. Yes, if a man dies, he shall live again."

FIVE NEGROES GIVEN NEW TRIALS MONDAY

Five negroes of Dooly county who were sentenced in the Dooly superior court to serve life sentences on a charge of complicity in the murder of Robert Davis, a white man, at Byromville in May, 1921, were granted new trials Monday by the supreme court in a decision handed down reversing the verdict of the lower court.

The negroes who will get new trials are Lee Adams, Causey Chapman, L. West, Buddy Wall and Chess Lewis. The killing occurred when an attempt was made to collect a legal judgment of $1.75 against Fats Chapman, a negro of Byromville. Nineteen negroes were indicted for complicity in the case.

Lesson 19 THE SPARK GAP

In a simple form as shown in the following diagram, the spark gap consists of two adjustable metal electrodes (A) and (B) supported by binding posts (C). The electrodes may be zinc, brass or copper, approximately three-eighths of an inch in diameter, with parallel sparking surfaces. The distance between the surfaces can be closely regulated. The base (C) is of insulating material, usually glass or hard rubber.

If zinc electrodes approximately three-eighths of an inch in diameter are used in the plain gap, a more satisfactory spark note will be obtained than with brass or copper electrodes. Pointed electrodes give a higher tone to the spark note, but have the disadvantage of offering less cool surface. Electrodes with slightly rounded edges give a harsh tone to the spark note, but have the advantage of a large cooling surface and better properties of quenching. There are several factors which enter into the production of a satisfactory tone by the plain spark gap—the frequency and voltage of the source of supply, the length of the gap, the design of the electrodes, and the capacity of the condenser. A spark discharge with a high musical pitch has the advantage of being more easily read by the receiving station above the interference of static in the atmosphere.

The circuit of the radio transmitter containing the condenser, the primary winding of the oscillation transformer and the spark gap, is known as the closed oscillatory circuit as distinguished from the open or radiating circuit, which includes the antenna, the aerial tuning inductance, the secondary winding of the oscillation transformer and the short wave condenser.

The spark gap maintains the closed oscillatory circuit in a state of rest until the condenser is fully charged. The discharge of the condenser through the spark gap sets up high frequency oscillations in the closed oscillatory circuit and when the energy of these oscillations is transferred to the open radiating circuit, the spark gap brings the closed circuit again to a state of rest.

When the condenser discharges through the spark gap, the high frequency oscillations set up in the closed circuit should continue until the transfer of energy produces oscillations of maximum amplitude in the open circuit and then the spark gap should quench the oscillations of the closed circuit, leaving the open circuit free to oscillate and to radiate the energy of the oscillations in the form of electromagnetic waves.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Radio Editor: I made the battery charger, but it does not seem to work very well. What can I do to improve it?
J. F.
The charger as shown is all right, but it will need more electric lights in the circuit to raise the amperage. Better get a regular charging ammeter and insert it in the circuit. Then add electric lights until the meters show about four or five amperes. The charger at present is charging the battery at such a slow rate that it would take days to charge the battery up.

Radio Editor—What is the capacity of a 23-plate variable condenser? Also tell me what is the capacity of a 43-plate condenser as well as a grid condenser? What is the difference between V T 200 and V T 201?
J. B.

The 23-plate condenser is .0005 microfarads, the 43-plate .001 mfd., and the grid condenser is either .0005 or .0005 mfd. You evidently mean V. T. 200 and 201. The first mentioned tube is used only as a detector tube and the second one (V. T. 201) is an amplifier tube.

Radio Editor—Could you tell me where station WGY is located, and also the wave length?
J. K.
WGY is the station of the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y. The wave length is 300 meters.

LISTENING IN

Radio has, of course, commended itself as a means of publicity for many kinds of undertakings, and it is no exception. The Conn. company, of South Bend, Ind., however, is a little more ambitious than any organization that has come to our notice. This company has arranged for the broadcasting of four concerts of dance music and instrumental solos on the same evening at the same time, from New York, Chicago, Denver and San Francisco. Thus everyone on the American continent, and passengers on shipboard within 1,500 miles of shore east or west, will be able to hear the concert, provided, of course, they have receiving apparatus. The first concert began at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, according to the time of the various stations, so that folks in the middle of the continent could hear a continuous broadcast program for four hours.

The inevitable step in modern industry has been taken by the manufacturers of radio apparatus. A dinner was held Wednesday night by invitation of the Freed-Emerson corporation of New York of a number of the larger radio manufacturers, at which the question of organization of the industry was discussed and plans laid for the formation of a national radio chamber of commerce.

After several months of inactivity Atlanta's Old Guard met at luncheon Monday in the Chamber of Commerce and made plans for many activities during the coming months to keep alive the memory of the Old Guard, particularly the memory of Confederate heroes.

First on their program, as definitely outlined, is the organization of a big parade of the organization in uniform on Memorial day. Fifty men, or more, will march on Atlanta's streets and particularly the memory of Confederate heroes.

The second event decided upon will be a barbecue to be attended by all members of the company. Mr. J. B. Wilson as the host, at his beautiful Ballyclare Lodge at Wesley avenue and place in May.

At the invitation of Commandant Joseph A. McCord the entire organization, together with the wives of the members, will be his guests at his farm up in Murray county for about three days. The party will motor to the farm, visiting some of the historic interest along the way, and will probably erect memorial tablets at some of all of these places. The Old Guard present at the luncheon were addressed by Commandant McCord. The liberties of a nation are kept alive by preserving its memories," Mr. McCord declared, "and this organization should be keenly alive to its duties in preserving the spirit, the heroism and the memories of the Old Guard, and particularly the bravery of those sons of Atlanta who fought beneath the banner of the Gate City Guard. Most of them can no longer speak for themselves and their mantle has fallen on our shoulders. We should be inspired by the memories of their deeds."

Fred Paxton, Dr. R. M. Eubanks, a member of the organization, and several others, including many of the Confederate veterans, addressed the organization, pledging their own aid to its plans and asking the aid of the others.

ROYSER FINED FOR VIOLATING "BLUE SKY LAW"

Nat L. Royster was sentenced by Judge Andy Calhoun in the criminal court of Atlanta Monday to pay a fine of $500 or serve 12 months for violation of the "blue sky law," it being charged that he sold stock in a trade journal publishing company of Atlanta to Mrs. Louise Dumas. The consideration was $2,000. He is alleged, and Royster sold it without first having secured a license from the secretary of state. He appealed from the decision and furnished $1,000 bond for appearance in the superior court.

BREEDLOVE JOINS RALPH MARTIN CO.

Harry Breedlove, who for the past several years has been prominently identified in Atlanta real estate circles, is now associated with the Ralph B. Martin company in the Atlanta Trust Co. building, specializing in homes and vacant lots. Mr. Breedlove states that he will be glad to welcome his friends and acquaintances.

WAYS OF OBTAINING LIGHTNING SAFETY

Nature of Protection Devices and Latest Rulings on the Subject.

The subject of protection against lightning is the all-absorbing topic among the radio fans at the present time. Already there have been a few electrical storms and some of the newcomers in radio are getting nervous about the subject, when, in reality, there is nothing to worry about.

If the aerial is properly protected it is just as safe as the telephone wires or the wires that are connected to the front door bell. Simply because the aerial is perched on the top of the house and exposed to the elements, is no reason why it should pick up a static electric lightning. In reality the aerial is a very fine protection against lightning. If the aerial is properly grounded it will gradually drain the electricity from the air, with the result that there is very small chance of a bolt actually striking anywhere in the neighborhood.

What actually causes a bolt of lightning is the high pressure built up within the thunder cloud. This acts much as a steam boiler. If the pressure is not relieved by a safety valve, the pressure keeps increasing steadily until the point is reached where something has to go. In the case of a boiler, of course, the breaking point is reached and the whole affair bursts. With the lightning the same thing happens, but the aerial acts as a safety valve, and it gradually and slowly and silently drains the electricity from the air. There is absolutely no danger of lightning if the aerial is properly erected and grounded.

Equipment Necessary.

The present ruling of the board of fire underwriters calls for a small enclosed air or vacuum gap connected in such a way that the message will pass through the receiving set in the usual way, but when there is excessive electricity in the air it will jump the small gap and pass off harmlessly to the ground. Of course the set cannot be used anyway when a storm is in progress, because all that will be heard are the discharges of the lightning.

The lightning gap mentioned above must be mounted outside the building at least five inches from the wall and a good heavy wire must be run from the gap to the ground. The wire must also be kept at least five inches from the wall and an independent ground connection must be made. The inside water or steam pipe cannot be used for this purpose and neither can an outside drain pipe, unless it is five inches from the wall.

Switch Not Recommended.

The air gap may be used with a receiving set only, while for a transmitting set a heavy single pole double throw switch must be installed. The rules governing the distance from the wall also hold true for the switch as well as the gap. The man who has a receiving set only is advised not to purchase one of these heavy switches, because if it happens to forget to throw the switch when the set is left for the night the lightning protection is absolutely no good. This has happened a great many times and while there never have been any direct hits by lightning, there have been cases where the wires on the tuning unit have been burned and completely mixed up. Lightning has played many peculiar tricks on the radio men of the past and no one can say what it will do next.

RETAIL FURNITURE DEALERS TO MEET HERE ON MAY 17

Plans are being formed for the annual convention of the Georgia Retail Furniture Dealers' association in Atlanta May 17 and 18, expected to be the largest gathering ever held by the furniture men of Georgia. Assisted by the Atlanta Convention bureau, Walter J. Wood, of the Rhodes-Wood furniture company, is making arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates.

Officers of the Furniture Dealers' Association are: L. C. Gilbert, of Macon, president; B. B. Ivey, of Albany, vice president, and J. W. McManus, of Macon, secretary and treasurer. James Kennedy, of the Kennedy Furniture Company, of Atlanta, is a member of the executive committee.

OGLETHORPE TO OPEN SUMMER TERM, JUNE 6

Oglethorpe university announces the opening of the summer term of the university on June 6.

This term is of particular interest to teachers, to college students and to young men and women lacking a few units in their preparations to enter college.

The work is done intensively. For example, such a English course, which is usually taught three hours per week during the fall, winter and spring terms, is taught during the summer term nine hours per week, so that a student may do as much in a particular study as he would do during the entire year.

Jilted—and He Never Knew Why

HE could not believe it! She refused him—refused to even see him again. And she would not tell him why.

The parting hurt her as much as it did him. She hated to do it, yet she knew it was all for the best. For she knew that she could never be happily married to a man whose breath was habitually disagreeable. Their dreams of happiness—shattered.

The peculiar part of this unpleasant ailment is that not one in ten of those who are afflicted with it even suspect it. Yet it is so quickly apparent to others. Be on the safe side! Steroline, used morning and evening, will instantly overcome most cases of bad breath. Steroline is a highly antiseptic liquid mouthwash, and is also fine for sore throat or tonsillitis. Get it from your druggist today, 50c a bottle.

SLATON OPPOSES STATE INCOME TAX

That a state income tax would stifle private enterprise and paralyze industry was the belief expressed by ex-Governor John M. Slaton in an address before the members of the junior chamber of commerce at a forum luncheon held in the Peacock cafe at 12:30 o'clock Monday. Governor Slaton declared that the passage of this bill would drive business out of the state and result in untold loss to Georgia.

Already weighted down with the burden of taxation, he stated, the business of the state would be forced to seek other fields of operation and ship manufactured products back to Georgia. This, he said, would be the very opposite of what far-sighted citizens are striving to bring about.

Another objection to the tax, said Mr. Slaton, is that it would mean that around 97 per cent of the people of the state would pay little or no tax, while 3 per cent would shoulder the entire amount. In other words, the burden of taxation would have to be borne by the commercial and industrial element of the population. Said Mr. Slaton:

"The state is not doing as well as it should be doing, and when the sum total is not thriving, when business is depressed, is it wise to lay a heavy burden of tax on business?"

"Politicians will tell you that the tax will fall upon the class of citizens on whom it is imposed. This is not strictly true. If you are on a business, the burden will be passed on down to those below."

"If you lay a heavy burden on business in this state, business will seek to move to another state and ship goods here. In this way Georgia will soon lose a large proportion of her industries, especially the ones that are not dependent upon their location."

There are only eighteen states in the union that have this kind of tax. If you go to these states you will find a kind of business that is entirely different from the general industry of Georgia, which is largely agricultural. "Is it better that the man who makes the money shall invest it in business or that the politician who had no part in earning it shall spend it? Do you want to destroy the industry of the state of Georgia?"

Speakers on Program. Among other speakers of the program were Mayor Key and Mel Wilkinson, president of the Aschcraft-Wilkinson company. Mayor Key made an appeal for the preservation of the A. B. & A. railroad and stated that unless the people of Georgia moved to save it, it would be scrapped. Pointing out the immense area of territory and the number of the citizens of the state served by the road, Mayor Key urged that measures be taken to make the railroad state property.

Respecting the unemployment situation, which Mayor Key also touched on in the course of his remarks, he said:

"There is no man in Atlanta who can do a thing well who cannot get a job in Atlanta." Mayor Key intimated that unemployment conditions in the city are improving rapidly.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY PLANT OPENS AGAIN

Employing a force of about 300 men, the Atlanta branch of the Ford Motor company resumed operations Monday after being idle for several months. The branch will have a daily output of 75 cars, according to W. W. Mitchell, branch manager.

Practically all of the employees are ex-servicemen, the force being well completed, and no others will be employed at this time, according to Manager Mitchell. The minimum wage scale of $5 per day is in effect.

One of the principal recommendations required of applicants for positions was a discharge from the government military or naval service. An employment agent of the American Legion was stationed at the factory to assist in filling the positions.

Within the past two months the Ford business in the south has increased more than 100 per cent, according to Mr. Mitchell. Henry Ford is said to have consented to the reopening of the local branch because of the tremendous increase in business and his present interest in the south.

M. L. TATHAM IS HELD ON CHARGE OF BIGAMY

Judge T. O. Hathcock in the municipal court Monday, bound over M. L. Tatham to the grand jury under a $2,000 bond on a charge of bigamy. It was alleged by Mrs. Lillian Tatham that she married the defendant in 1919 and later she said he deserted her and married Miss Ira Lee Brown. Mrs. Lillian Tatham told the court she had discovered he had three other wives—one at Porterdale, Ga., another at Monroe, Ga., and another whose whereabouts she did not know.

Open House Kept At Scottish Rite Child Hospital

Approximately 300 persons were the guests of the Scottish Rite hospital for cripple children Monday. A steady stream of visitors poured through the establishment from 10 o'clock in the morning until 5:30 in the afternoon, inspecting the wards and clinics.

The open house held Monday was considered highly successful in every way by the leaders of the woman's auxiliary, the members of which conducted the visitors through the hospital. Mrs. Robert Gregg, chairman of the house committee, headed the auxiliary.

A feature of the day was the educational work being done among the crippled children, it being the purpose of those in charge to allow no child to lose time from school while under their care. A grade teacher has been employed to give daily instructions in grammar school subjects, while other instructors teach manual training, basket work and sewing.

Visitors to the hospital Monday were registered and taken through the dental clinic, the operating room and the ward, as well as the dining room and other parts of the main building. In the wards some of the tots, whose deformities were so pronounced as to require them to be strapped to the frames, were making baskets and weaving.

Dr. Michael Hoke, nationally-known orthopedic surgeon, is in charge of the hospital. Special arrangements were made for guests to reach the establishment by automobile.

Brilliant Social Side To Woman's Club Opening

BY LOUISE DOOLY.

An event of extraordinary brilliancy, socially and dramatically, the opening of the new auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club assembled last night an audience conspicuously representative of leadership, not only in the Woman's club, but in the city and the state.

The groups in the boxes included the governor of the state and his wife, the mayor of the city and his wife, the officers of the club, and heads of departments, the author of the play, the architect of the building and several of the most generous supporters of the building fund, while the body of the house also held an assemblage of Atlanta's most prominent people.

There was a delightful comedy-drama, "Democracy of Luxe," by Parker Hord, an Atlanta, in which the cast was made up of Atlanta's most talented people dramatically; incidental music was provided by an orchestra under the direction of Enrico Leide, director of the Howard theater, and all went smoothly and more than pleasantly.

Auditorium Beautiful.

But for once, hardly was it true that "the play is the thing," for the beauty of the new building and the overpowering consciousness of everybody, and pride in it that everybody seemed to want to claim, with the clubmen themselves.

So impressive of beauty and taste and comfort was the general whole; so artistic and complete and satisfying was every detail, that the play itself could not at once relieve itself of the glamour of a first impression to describe as separate entities all the admirable things that make this little theater a rare delight, full of promise of a brilliant destiny.

The mind is crowded with the picture as a whole—the soft, neutral tint of the structure proper, and the dark, ask panels that match the French Caen stone walls; the rose curtain and hangings; decorative color and lighting effects that please the eye but never burden it; a general sense of openness and grace of outline.

And then there was the capacity audience, palpable with expectancy and festivity which is characteristic of no other occasion than a "first night." Music in its happiest expression still further stimulated the imagination, and a ray which runs riot with probability, and is as stirring as a Phillips Oppeinde novel, kept one on the alert with its romantic action, while the personality of the players still further intrigued the interest.

The fact that the parties in the boxes and a large number in the audience were in the habit of contributing to the formal character of the occasion, and added an extra air of elegance to the supper parties in the clubhouse proper, and the dark, ask panels that match the French Caen stone walls; the rose curtain and hangings; decorative color and lighting effects that please the eye but never burden it; a general sense of openness and grace of outline.

Catalina's Tuneful "Loreley" Program of Today's Concert

The last opera music of the series presented by the Atlanta Woman's club will be heard this morning at the Howard theater when Catalina's "Loreley," the new opera to be given in Atlanta this season by the Metropolitan Opera company will be presented in concert form.

As a crowning finale to the series, it is hoped to make the performance this morning a brilliant event. Enrico Leide, chairman of music, has arranged an extra overture to be played by the Howard orchestra. Other additional features will be introduced and there will be a dance divertissement by Miss Nellie Sullivan and Wallace Milam. Mrs. Charles Chalmers, chairman of singers, has procured three artists of the highest rank to sing the leading roles, and Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson will interpret the drama.

Miss Frances Woodberry, soprano soloist at All Saints church and a pupil of the late Madame Renard, will sing the lovely "Loreley's aria." George McNulty, tenor, will sing "Loreley's solo," and the duet with John Hoffman, known as the "Walter and Herman Duet." Mr. Hoffman has a splendid baritone voice.

Mrs. Jackson will sing a "Loreley" costume, in flame color. The story of the play is along the line of the old Rhine legend. Claudio Muzio will sing the title role when presented by the Metropolitan. Danie and Gill are the other principals in the opera.

Following is the entire program for Tuesday morning:

Richard Broyles Marries Miss Mary Ruth Jones

Richard J. Broyles, son of R. A. Broyles, prominent Atlanta business man, and Miss Mary Ruth Jones, of Macon, were married Monday at the home of their aunt, Mrs. C. E. Broyles, at Ringgold, Ga. The couple had planned to have an Easter wedding at the home of their relative. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Eugene Rutland, pastor of the Ringgold Methodist church. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Broyles, father and mother of the groom.

Mr. Broyles is one of the best known and most popular young men in Atlanta. At one time he served on the editorial staff of The Constitution and left the newspaper to enter the army. He was a student at the first officers' training camp at Fort McPherson, winning the rank of second lieutenant. He later was promoted and won the rank of captain while serving overseas. He was in several prominent engagements at the front, serving in the seventh division.

After leaving the army Mr. Broyles entered the department of theology at

Miss Mildred Camp Will Be Queen Of May Festival

Miss Mildred Harris Camp, lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwina Camp, and granddaughter of Mrs. Harris, noted writer, was chosen as queen of the Uncle Remus May festival, which is an interesting occasion of each year, and is staged under the direction of the Uncle Remus Memorial association and given at "Wren's Nest," the home of Uncle Remus, in West End. Mrs. Bernard Montgomery will be chairman of the festival, which will be one of the most picturesque and attractive affairs of the spring season.

Several hundred children who reside in West End will take part in the program, the plans of which will be announced later.

Mrs. William Fisch And Mrs. Ayer To Sponsor Party

The hospital and jail committee of the Atlanta Woman's club will sponsor a bridge-ten and millinery and gown contest this afternoon at the club, the proceeds to be devoted to the work of the committee.

There will be a millinery and gown contest, at which the ladies will wear their own creations.

Two cakes have been donated by Mrs. Fisch, the white goose fan and a mince ticket for the Oglethorpe Players' club have been given by Mrs. Ayer and will be awarded as prizes for this contest. As a mark of honor, mention, blue, red, white and purple ribbons will be pinned on the next four women who have creditable showings in this contest. The price of each ticket is 50 cents.

Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilmer, Dr. and Mrs. Thorne Jacobs, Dr. and Mrs. Chester King, Mrs. Byrnes and Mrs. May Bailey will be special refreshments served, and the price of each ticket is $1.

Mrs. J. Howard Stokes, Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson, Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin and Mrs. Susie Bowden Johnson and Miss Virginia Turman will be guests in Augusta for the program for the afternoon.

Buffet Supper For Clark-Lilly Bridal Party

An event of Monday evening was the buffet supper given by Mrs. Clark-Lilly and her guests at the home of Mrs. Stephen L. McCready, in compliment to the Clark-Lilly wedding attendants.

The house was artistically arranged with bright spring flowers in vases and bowls. The color motif of pink and white being effectively used in the ices, mints and bonbons.

Mrs. McCready was gowned in black chiffon heavily beaded.

Theater Guild Will Meet Thursday

"The Colors," by Mary Raymond S. Andrews, will be read by Mrs. Fred J. White at the meeting of the Little Theater guild Thursday evening, April 20, at Steinway hall, Phillips Creek.

Mrs. White, a former professional platform reader, was selected to read the Pilgrims' tercentenary play before the Drama league in Chicago last summer, and has delighted audiences in Atlanta on a number of occasions. She reads from memory and her characterizations are distinctive and well presented with fine diction.

"The Colors" is in perfect tune with the present world conditions, and in every detail it is a masterpiece of the highest modernism of President Woodrow Wilson.

This meeting is open to the public, the friends of the Guild members and Mrs. White are particularly invited.

Tacky Party To Be Given

On Thursday evening, April 20, the Philathea class of Baptist Tabernacle will enjoy an old-fashioned tacky party. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes.

Bell-Jernigan Wedding Is Quiet Home Ceremony

A social event of Monday evening of interest to a host of friends was the marriage of Miss Laura Bell and Allen Orman Jernigan, which was solemnized at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Bell, on Springdale road in Druid Hills. Dr. S. P. Wiggins, pastor of the Park Street Methodist church, a cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

The house was beautifully decorated with baskets of Easter lilies, ferns and garden flowers. An improvised altar in the drawing room was banked with palms. Cathedral candelabra held burning tapers on either side of the altar and a tall basket of Easter lilies was placed in the center. Preceding the ceremony Miss Susie Ogletree, of LaGrange, Ga., sang "Love's Call," accompanied by Miss Hazel Wood.

The bride party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. Liszt's "Dream of Love" was played softly during the ceremony.

Miss Martha Bell, the only sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and was beautifully gowned in peach-rose tulle, with a smartly trimmed in bands of crystals. Her hat was of hyacinth blue straw and garden flowers. She carried a cascade bouquet of Ophelia roses, blue, lavender and pink sweet peas.

Little Myrtle Jernigan, sister of the groom, was the flower girl. She wore an exquisite little frock of peach and lavender ribbon. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of sweethearts roses showered with valley lilies.

John Newton McEachern, Jr., acted as best man.

The lovely bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and was becomingly gowned in an exquisite three-piece suit of navy blue Canton crepe, richly embroidered in gray. Her hat was a smart model of blue Milan straw, effectively trimmed in braid and steel gray grapes.

She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. The table in the dining room was exquisitely appointed, and was graced in the center with a beautiful wedding cake artistically embellished with Easter lilies and lilies of the valley. A wreath of real orange blossoms and smilax encircled the cake, and pink and white tulle bows and smilax were draped from the chandelier to the table.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Jernigan left for Jacksonville, where they sail for New York after May 1 they will be at home to their friends in the Gordon Court apartments on Ponce de Leon.

Mrs. Bell were brown georgette, heavily beaded over satin. Her corsage was Ophelia roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Jernigan wore black lace over satin. Her corsage was red roses and valley lilies.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ogletree, Miss Susie Ogletree, of LaGrange, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Phil Ogletree and Miss Fred Ogletree, of Cornelia, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Mills, Mrs. C. Q. Wright and Ed Vann, of Albany, Ga.; J. A. Vann, of Birmingham, Ala.

The bride is a graduate of Washington seminary and later attended Randolph-Macon Woman's college, at Lynchburg, Va. She completed her education at Agnes Scott college and since that time has studied art and music under prominent teachers in Atlanta. Although she has never made her debut, she has been very popular socially and possesses a charming personality.

Mr. Jernigan is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Jernigan. He received his education at the Georgia School of Technology, where he was a popular member of the Phi Kappa Phi fraternity. During the war Mr. Jernigan rendered eighteen months' active service in France and is now one of Atlanta's most prominent young business men. He is a member of the Capital City club and the Druid Hills Golf club.

Parent-Teacher Associations Meet in Columbus Tuesday

Columbus, Ga., April 17.—(Special.) All forces in Columbus have been organized for the three education conventions which will meet in the city during this week. The committees in charge of reservations has planned to have representatives at the Rialston hotel, which is in convention headquarters, to see that all delegates have a place to stay while in the city.

Other committees have arranged their work so that the three organizations can be easily handled without confusion in any way.

The Parent-Teacher associations of the state convene Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock and the first formal session will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the St. Luke Methodist church.

This program will continue through the session Thursday afternoon.

The convention of the city and county school officials will come together for their first session Wednesday night at 6 o'clock, when a dinner will be given them at the Rialston hotel.

The Georgia Education association which is the most general of the conventions holds its first meeting Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Thursday night all three conventions will meet in common session at 8 o'clock in the First Baptist church, under the direction of the Georgia Education association.

Many of the delegates to the first two conventions are planning to remain for the last one. About 1,500 or 2,000 visitors are expected to be present during education week.

Mrs. Hermance to Speak at Luncheon

Mrs. Harry P. Hermance, of Toronto, Canada, will speak for the League of Women Voters at the luncheon Tuesday, at 12:30 o'clock, at the Chamber of Commerce cafe.

Mrs. Hermance formerly lived in Atlanta and was the first president of the league, and is on her way to attend the national convention of the League of Women Voters in Baltimore. She is the guest of Mrs. Lee Ashcraft while in Atlanta.

The Joys That white teeth bring

Millions of people have found them out in this delightful way. This is to urge that you do so—and now.

Combat the film

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

That film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. Teeth that should gleam—millions of them—are kept clouded by that film.

That film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. It constantly breeds germs, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Nearly all tooth troubles are thus traced to film. And, under old brushing methods, these troubles have been constantly increasing.

Ways to end it

Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively fight film. So well-brushed teeth, as most folks know, discolor and decay.

So dental science has in late years sought effective film combatants. Two have now been found.

Peppodent

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific film combatant, combined with two other modern requisites. Now advised for daily use by leading dentists everywhere. Supplied by druggists in large tubes.

Five new effects

Peppodent combats that film with every application. It keeps teeth highly polished, so film less easily adheres.

It multiplies, also, the salivary flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Twice daily it brings these five desired effects. And modern authorities say the tooth paste should bring them.

Watch these effects and judge them for yourself. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Judge by the benefits you feel. Judge by what your mirror shows. Then decide if you should join the millions who now clean teeth in this way. Cut out the coupon now.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

The Sympathy Bloodsuckers.

If it were possible for one person with a strong vitality to infuse into another person who lacked strength some of her life blood and vitality every little while, and if it were customary to do this, how soon the strong people would be sucked dry if they would permit it.

Presumably they wouldn't. And yet it seems to me that a very similar process goes on between the person with a strong personality and a sympathetic disposition and the people about them. Anyone who will give sympathy is almost sure to be made the victim of those who crave it.

And while to give sympathy in a reasonable degree is normal and natural and not a drain, to give it constantly, to constantly be called upon to lift up those about you, is a tremendous drain and often affects physically the person who does it.

People with a strongly sympathetic disposition should not place themselves in positions where the call upon their sympathies will be too constant. For instance, a nurse with too sympathetic a disposition will wear herself out quickly. Her patients will feel her tendency to sympathy and will make undue demands upon it.

Sympathy Grudges.
For that is the effect that the person with the sympathetic disposition always seems to have: she brings out the sympathy craving tendency of people about her. Practically all of us are sympathy greedy and the minute we find anyone who will give sympathy we bring out all our troubles and put our worst foot forward in order to extract all the sympathy we can get.

Just as people who are generous about money draw about them a circle of financial sycophants so those who are generous with sympathy have a circle of sympathy sycophants.

And yet to advise anyone to control the tendency to be generous with sympathy seems a terrible thing because sympathy is so beautiful and so rare that it seems sad there should be any less of it.

Sympathy at the Right Time.

One day when I had made a bid for sympathy, of which I was very much ashamed afterwards, I was discussing the subject with a woman who has had a tremendous hard time and out of it has developed a fine character. I said it seemed to me that much as we craved sympathy we got along better without it, perhaps it weakened us and we developed more strength within ourselves if we did not get it.

She did not agree. "I have had some very hard places in my life," she said (she certainly has) "and a little sympathy at just the right time has meant everything in the world to me."

A Check Rein.

"A little sympathy at just the right time." Yes, he who can give that gives one of the greatest gifts in the world. But those who abuse the privilege and try to get sympathy all the time just because there are people generous enough to give it, should put a check rein of themselves and remember that sympathy selfishness is just as bad as any other form of selfishness—or worse.

These Latin-American Women To Attend Conference in Baltimore

From Hudson bay to Cape Horn women are gathering in Baltimore for the first Pan-American conference of women ever held. Twenty governments of the American continents have responded to the invitations sent by the National League of Women Voters for the study department through its diplomatic representatives in the republics of Latin-America.

The program calls for the consideration of these subjects: Child welfare, education, women in industry, prevention of traffic in women, civil status of women and the general condition of women in the Americas.

The conference is to be held in connection with the third annual convention of the National League of Women Voters, April 20 to 23. Co-operating with the league in bringing the conference to the United States are Secretary Hughes, Secretary Hoover and Dr. L. S. Howe, director general of the Pan-American union.

Mexico and Island Republics.

Representative women from the island republics as well as from the two continents are coming to the conference. The Cuban delegation will be headed by Mrs. Emma Lopez de Garrido, her associate being Senora Amalia E. Mallen de Ostolaza, president of the Partido Nacional Sufragista. Mrs. Carmela Nieto de Herrera will represent the Havana newspaper, El Mundo. From Haiti comes Mme. Charles Dubé of Port au Prince; the Dominican republic is sending one of its first women lawyers, Senora Ana Teresa Paradas. Porto Rico and the Philippines will be represented, the latter by Mme. Jaime C. de Veyra, wife of the resident commissioner.

It is a particularly interesting feature of the conference that the Mexican women are to play a prominent part. The delegation will be headed by Senora Elena Torres, secretary of the Centro Feminista, who will be accompanied by other official delegates appointed by President Obregon and by delegates from some of the Mexican states, as well as by other representatives of her organization.

The Latin-American diplomatic circle at Washington will be well represented. Mme. Jacobo Varela, wife of the Uruguayan minister, has been appointed by her government as official delegate for that country. Ecuador will be represented by Mrs. Matilda Carbo, wife of a former minister of Ecuador, and Bolivia by Senora Arcadia Zalles, daughter of a former minister. Colombia, the National Council of Women in Argentina has appointed as their delegate Mme.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BY W. L. GEORGE

There comes a time to all of us when we wonder what to read. We are tired of novels; we do not want to hear how in the end Tom married Millicent; biography appears as a fuller form of fiction; as for travel books we never expect to leave our own city again. In that despair I turn to a volume that everybody underestimates, the dictionary. Have you ever read the dictionary? There is nothing more exciting, except perhaps the railroad time-table, than this latter requires a romantic mind.

The exciting thing about the dictionary is the diversity of the topics, and the brevity of their treatment. You read that A was invented by the Arabs, that the Aa is a Polish river, that the abacus with its roads of beads is used for counting when one's fingers are not enough. If these facts interest you, here is a large library of subjects without end. If they leave you bored, you obtain another effect. You go on endlessly from abacus to aesthetics, to agronomy, to azure—and Z is a long way off. Your brain absorbs, grows saturated, almost doped. You no longer know what you are reading, and yet you go on in a delicious drowsy way. Time passes and matters not. You are free from toil, and yet you are not being compelled to inform your mind. You are in a state of perfect restfulness; perhaps you even go to sleep. If ever I have a nervous breakdown I shall know what to do; I shall read the dictionary from A to Z, and then begin again.

Attractive Visitors For Conference.

Many attractive and charming visitors will arrive Wednesday to attend the junior league conference, which is the outstanding event of the week.

Miss Virginia Hunt and Miss Elizabeth Burnett, of Washington, will be the guests of Miss Mary Nelson. Miss Hunt attended St. Timothy's school and is a charming member of Washington society.

Miss Burnett is a classmate of Miss Nelson's at Holton Arms and is the attractive daughter of Judge and Mrs. Ballou, of Washington.

Miss Louise King, who will visit Mrs. Lee Ashby, is also a Holton Arms girl and an attractive member of the debutante set.

Misses Kathryn Craig, Cornelia Keble and Ellenore Tyne will come from Nashville, Tenn., and will be among the attractive belles for the conference.

Miss Craig was a popular debutante of this year and was president of the Cotillion club, which is composed of the most popular and attractive girls in society. Each year they entertain at large ball at the Hermitage hotel, the occasion being the most elaborate affair of the winter season.

Miss Keble made her debut last year and was chosen queen of the Mardi Gras. She is very beautiful and possesses a charming personality.

Griffith Club Concert Tonight.

An interesting concert will be given by the Griffith Mandolin and Guitar club in the auditorium of the Washington seminary at 1374 Peachtree Tuesday, April 18, at 8:15 o'clock in the evening.

The program includes: Banjo Club Selection—Washington Seminary Mandolin club. Song—Mrs. Nellie Nix Edwards. Harp Solo—Dorothy Penny (aged five).

Numbers by Griffith Harp club, composed of ten members. "The Georgian," a composition by James Johnson, dedicated to W. B. Griffith, will be played by the Banjo club.

Trio for piano, mandolin and harp. Striking number, "The Volga Boatman," harps played by Lillian Le Conte, Jacqueline Moore, Winifred Mahony, Frances McKenna and Mrs. John Dobbs. The girls are around 11 years of age.

Mandolin solo by Berry Grant, gifted young boy.

The alumnae of the seminary will sponsor this concert. Mrs. Mary Butt Griffith Dodd, a member of the music faculty of the seminary, has worked very enthusiastically in arranging the program for the benefit of the Memorial fund, the alumnae library, in honor and memory of Mrs. Howard Mathews. Admission is 50 cents, and tickets may be purchased at the door.

Music Study Club Postpones Program.

The program which was to have been given Wednesday by the Atlanta Music Study Club, at Egleston Hall, has been postponed until May 3, at 10:30 o'clock.

Miss Margaret Hecht will be in charge of the interesting program of American composers. She will be assisted by well known Atlanta musicians and singers.

Mrs. Ashby To Give Lecture.

The "Fourth Dimension" will be the subject of a very interesting and instructive lecture given by Mrs. Rose M. Ashby Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the lecture room of the Carnegie library. The subject will be treated from a psychological viewpoint based on number. All interested are invited to attend.

Musical Tea At Woman's Club.

With William H. Fleming, of Augusta, who is visiting Mrs. C. K. Ayer, and Mrs. Le Vert Oney of Birmingham.

ham, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. William Fisch, Miss Lucy Cawthra and Miss Lillianne Smith, will be honorees at the musical tea given by Mrs. Ayer at the Woman's club this afternoon.

The officers of the community home will also share honors upon this occasion, and include Mrs. Henry McEwen, Mrs. J. E. Allright, Mrs. R. O. Kerlin, Mrs. Charles Whitner, Mrs. John A. Perdue, Mrs. C. L. Pettigrew, Mrs. Dick, Mrs. J. E. Sommerfield, Mrs. F. H. Logan, Mrs. Houston Johnston and Mrs. James L. Key.

Assisting in entertaining will be Miss Mildred Pairo, Miss Isabel Howard, Miss Carolyn in Howard, Miss Virginia Pairo, Miss Lucy Pairo, Miss Margaret Powell, Miss Dorothy Orr, Miss Mildred Clark and Miss Mary Nevin.

A Wife on Leave

Who's Who and What's Happened.

Sally Brabant, a society butterfly, has been given a year's leave of absence by her husband.

Richard Brabant, who hopes that she will learn something of life. She has a thrilling situation with

Keith Gilbert, who has always been labeled "dangerous" and is horrified to learn that, despite his position in society, he is a bootlegger. One of his men shoots a revenue officer, and Gilbert is held for murder. He escapes, taking Sally with him, but she is rescued by Neal Calhoun, who gives her some good advice. She finds herself without funds, and, not knowing where her husband is, assumes the name of "Mrs. Pemberton," and obtains a position as chambermaid.

Claire Finch, who has more money than manners. They go to a summer resort, where Claire falls in love with Rex Mallory, the son of a prominent automobile manufacturer, who suffers Sally.

CHAPTER LVI.
An Echo From the Past.

Sally attempted to look as old and sedate as possible when she went to dinner at the Blue Kitten inn with Claire and Rex Mallory; however, her attempt was not wholly successful. In her black frock, of silk crepe, and her demure little black and white hat, she looked blonder and drier than ever, a fact which Rex Mallory was not slow to notice.

She had never seen a roadhouse of the type of this one. There was about it an atmosphere of unrestrained, bordering on rowdiness, even as early as the dinner hour. Cocktails were being served in coffee cups, but little pretense at concealment, and bottles stood on the floor beside nearly all the tables.

"Have a bit of something?" asked Mallory, as they seated themselves at a table near the dance floor. "Two this type, but of course, Dick had never taken her to one, and after his departure, when she had begun to go about with Keith Gilbert and his friends, there had always been more exciting places to go.

She was interested in this place, therefore, and a trifle disappointed. She did not know just what she had expected, but this restaurant seemed tame, with its many small tables, its conventionally clad waiters, and the usual jazz band. The summer night was infinitely more attractive. It must be beautiful this evening up in the New Hampshire hills, at Crooning Water—she wondered how her rock garden was coming on this summer, and if the striped nasturtiums had really come up again, or were just a freak of a season.

"Oh, I love this place!" That was Claire, returning to her table reluctantly when the music stopped at last. Mallory did not look so enthusiastic.

"And I adore dancing with you, Mr. Mallory," she went on. "It's so nice, not having to share your dances with a whole crowd."

Sally flushed at such brazen angling for her favor. She had thought Patricia Loring rather daring at times, but she had always been more subtle than this. And Claire, fat, a little out of breath, her face in need of powder, had too little charm at that moment to succeed in such flattery.

"Shall we dance?" Mallory turned to Sally as the music started again. "It's really a good floor—" His eyes begged her to dance with him, and she had accepted before she realized that Claire was furious.

They began to dance, and Claire stared after them angrily. Apparently in her code a chambermaid, no matter how young, didn't dance. Sally realized her mistake, but saw no way of correcting it.

"Do you like it here at all?" Mallory asked her in a low voice. "I didn't know of any other place nearby—and this is lively as the evening wears on; the cabaret is as good as anything you'll see on Broadway."

"Yes, it's very attractive," Sally glanced about her at the big, rather bare room, with its dim, rose-shaded lights and little alcoves, discreetly curtained. She did not like the atmosphere of the place—it made her feel vaguely uncomfortable, somehow. And the people—middle-aged, rather fat men, with young, pretty girls—girls who looked as if their mothers would make them wash off their very apparent rouge and powder. Boisterous laughter came from one of the alcoves, and a coarse, blonde woman drew back the half-drawn curtains and shouted to the band leader.

"That's Babe Lewis," Rex told Sally. "She can jazz anything; she's one of the headliners here—a marvel! Wait till you hear her."

Sally felt no desire to listen to the woman who was indulging in loud-voiced repartee with one of the waiters, but she smiled up at Mallory and tried to seem interested. After all, she had wanted to see life!

"Who's the big man who's walking across the floor now?" she asked. Even as she spoke, the man laid his hand on the arm of one of the dancers, said something and shook his head.

"He's the bouncer," answered Rex, with a laugh. "Those people were dancing cheek to cheek, and it isn't allowed here."

"But—why, people at home at the club—" she began, in amazement.

"Sure—they get away with things that aren't allowed in a place like this," he answered, applauding vigorously as the music stopped. Sally laid a protesting hand on his arm.

"No more for me—I'm very tired," she told him, regardless of the fact that she had been resting all afternoon noon. "Don't you want to dance with Claire now?" Claire was still gazing at her angrily.

"I do not!" he told her emphatically. But she insisted on going back to their table, and when he and Claire had begun to dance, slipped away into the dressing room where she had left her cloak, in search of a handkerchief. She looked for the cloak, then cried out in amazement.

A girl was calmly going through her pockets!

BEAUTY CHATS

ANSWERED LETTERS

Reader—As your neck, back and hips are too stout you must be overweight. The best way to attain a better proportion will be to reduce the entire body. Exercise will help but dieting will be the most effective. If you need information about food values, I shall be glad to mail you a chart which covers all this on receipt of an addressed envelope.

R. H. N.—Tincture of green soap is a liquid soap which is used for shampooing the hair or for cleansing the pores of the blackheads. Tincture of benzoin is an astringent and it also has a tendency to bleach the skin. Only a few drops of this are needed in a basin of water to be used as a rinse after bathing face and throat. Benzoin has a tendency to dry out the secretions if it is used to excess. Neither of these tinctures are patented preparations.

C. G. B.—I am sorry you have not received the hair tonic formula, but you did not include your address with your request of January or this present one. If you desire a reply through the mail, always send a stamped addressed envelope.

Brown Eyes—It is always best to have moles that are on the face removed by the electric needle, especially those from which hair is growing, such as yours.

Marie—If your blonde hair is turning dark, even though you are using the lemon juice or soda in the rinse, there is no way to keep it light unless you resort to peroxide. This is always a severe treatment to give the hair, and most people regret it later. Probably the darkening of the hair is needed for other changes in tints in the skin and the lighter shade of hair is not so becoming any longer.

A Reader—I do not know what any of these preparations contain, since all of those you mention are trade articles. If you are in need of a hair tonic which acts on the coloring cells, I shall be pleased to mail you a formula for it on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

Stenographer—The rounded fingernail is much more attractive than a pointed one. Whether the nail is short or long depends upon which looks best, which the shape of the fingers determines.

Clara—Treatment which requires the electric needle will never subject the person to any risk from scars.

Marion—The craze for tweezing the eyebrows has passed and since you eyes are paining you through this practice there is no reason to go on with it. You can brush the brows as they form almost as fine a line as the one which was acquired through torture.

Tomorrow—Brushing the Hair.
All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Atlanta, Ga., for week ending Saturday, April 15, 1922, on shipments sold out ranged from 13.1-2 cents to 16 cents per pound and averaged 14.10 cents per pound (adv.)

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company

It is a rare event, indeed, when gowns of such distinctive and exclusive character are shown outside of a few of the fashion centers of the world. Undoubtedly the women of Atlanta will appreciate these.

It is just such gowns that help Atlanta women to hold their reputation for being pre-eminently among the world's most beautiful and best dressed women.

Semi-Evening and Dinner Gowns

Spanish laces, cre laces, shadow laces and combinations of these with Georgette are shown in a great variety of lovely models.

All-white gowns and such pretty colors as rose, orchid, sapphire, periwinkle, coral, jade, grey and others. Many of these at the most surprisingly modest prices.

Little Basque Frocks

Are quaint and fascinating beyond words to describe. One model shows a tight basque of Turquoise blue taffeta with little self-bows down the front.

Round neck and short sleeves finished with soft white lace.

The bouffant skirt is fashioned of row upon row of white lace ruffles.

Furs for Evening

The new Platinum Fox furs for evening and afternoon wear are shown in a beautiful variety of neckpieces. The fur is exquisitely soft and full, and of a most becoming shade of silver or platinum grey.

Evening Scarfs

Exquisitely dainty and Fairy-like things of fine silk net elaborately wrought with designs in iridescent beads and sequins. All the lovely evening shades.

For The Opera

Exquisite Evening Gowns Dinner Gowns Dance Frocks Sequin and Lace Robes.

Magnificent imported models displaying the genius of such world-famed designers as Jenny, Agnes, Premet and other artistes Parisienne.

The "Sphinx" Robe

In all white is an exquisite affair of crystal beads, sequins, and bugles, elaborately garnished with pearls and combined with silver lace. It is doubly wound with a sinuously woven long girdle of crystal beads with tassels. As its name suggests, it is imbued with the mysterious beauty of silver moonlight on summer waters!

Sapphire Blue Sequins

Form the entire body of this stunning robe while the skirt is formed of narrow diagonal rows of sequins on silk net. It should be called the "Dragon Fly" with its exquisite hues of lambent blue flame and the consummate grace of its lines.

The effect is heightened by filmy flowing sleeves of finest silk net.

Paisley Gown

Very striking and unusual is a dinner or evening gown of Paisley Crepe Roman with silver brocade. Of simple lines, in tones of henna, jade and gold, its charm lies in the extreme richness and beauty of the fabric. Caught at a low waist line with a most unusual girdle of beads and henna crepe slashed and picoté in side panels to skirt hem.

A Gold Beaded Robe

is a magnificent model of gold beads and bugles over gold lace and chiffon. Sleeveless, with medium high neck. The new, low waist line is accentuated with a girdle of gold ribbon and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Capes and Evening Wraps

Of Canton crepe, velette and brocades in many new models. While some charming colored models are shown, black will have the preference.

Caracul Fur collars of white, grey or black are seen on many.

There are unusual trimming effects of very deep silk fringes and linings of high colors, such as jade, rose, turquoise, and others.

Evening Fans

Magnificent affairs of ostrich in black or in the high colors that present such stunning contrast when the proper shade is selected to offset the color of the gown.

Very new are those of lace and spangles deeply fringed with willow ostrich. Most effective also are the fans fashioned of a single very handsome plume.

The Mode For Black

Is well represented by many handsome models in black sequin gowns and jet beaded models. Chiffons and laces in black are shown in charming effects—all lace and lace combined with chiffon or nets.

Draped Gowns

Of utmost simplicity have a charm that only a master of design can impart. Soft, clinging materials, such as satin meteor, chiffon or Georgette have their sole ornamentation in the form of a broad girdle of crystal beads or brilliants. The new Dandelion shade of yellow and all the evening colors are shown.

Lace Gowns

In addition to quite charming models in black and white, there are strikingly beautiful things in colored laces—such exquisite shades as true jade color, rose, shades of blue and others. Afternoon lace frocks in browns, greys, and street shades.

Our Oriental Rug Display Is an Exposition of Rare Beauty

There is nothing else like it in the entire South.

In all the famous Persian Weaves and in the best examples of the Chinese, too, these are rugs in splendid weaves and colorings that are well worth coming to see. Whether wishing to buy or not, you can scarcely fail to get real pleasure from so beautiful and so lavish a showing of one of the finest of the arts.

"A Credit to the City"

Quite recently the owner of one of Atlanta's handsome homes paid a visit to our rug department. Seeing her appreciation of the beautiful, her attention was directed to our Oriental Rugs.

She was amazed and delighted at the lavishness of the display and especially to find that she could buy Genuine Persian Rugs at little more than the price of good domestics! She realized the economy of obtaining the best—and bought for her entire house—combining at once the two most desirable features possible to obtain, namely, the utmost in beauty and in durability.

"Such a display is indeed a credit to our city," she said, "and should be seen by all!"

Ninth Inning Rally Saves Game For Crackers Against Slagtown

Entering Last Frame Two Runs Behind, Locals
Hammer Statham From
Mound—Win, 5 to 4.

Birmingham, Ala., April 17.—(Special.)—Youth must be swayed. Youth was pitted against age Monday afternoon and these of granddaddyish persuasion won out. Moley, with his flock of kids, led the way until the ninth inning, and then his infatuation impersonated a setting of dynamite. When the descent to earth had finally been effected—after Phil Morrison had gone into the box—the Crackers were leading 5-2, and that's the score of the game. Up until the ninth the Barons enjoyed a 4-2 lead. But, he who laughs last always laughs loudest.

Bill Statham had but one inning to go to put his pitching percentage on a 500 basis, but in that ninth he cracked, and his infield pointed him in the cracking jubilee and almost made it unanimous. Big Chief Joe drew a pass to first in the ninth, after Statham had two strikes and no balls on him. Ritter singled but Guyon was held at second. The wily Indian then went to sleep on the job, and Robertson picked him off second with a pretty peg, and Josephus was run down in the chase.

Mayer doubled to left and Ritter scored. Dutch Bernsen then hit one between first and second, which Neun, by some miracle, managed to stop. As a great piece of work, but he spoiled it, when he tried to throw Dutch out at first, and Mayer counted. This made the score 4-4. Holden was next up and Phil Morrison relieved Statham. He hit one by the box which Phil Morrison tried to stop, but the ball was deflected and bounced into the hands of Krehmeyer.

Dutch tried to play score with it, and the boot placed Holden on first and Bernsen on third. Freddie Graff then won the ball game with a sacrifice tap to first base as Bernsen ploughed through for the winning run, and Ellen popped out to Robby for the end of the frame.

Barons Try Rally.
Those who had seen the Barons come back in the first game against Nashville, thought they might have enough reserve power to at least tie it up. Robertson hoisted a high one to Ellen at short, however, and Krehmeyer took advantage of Red's tendency to blow and waited him out for a base on balls. Burkett then hit a sharp grounder to Ellen for a double play and the game was over. Monday afternoon's menu was one of those swiftness, the fans failing to see little that looked like pitching. Statham's efforts were lambasted for an even dozen safe walks during the time he worked and Bedgood was hammered for nine safe swats.

The Barons, however, started out like they might win the game, when they got to Bedgood for two safe swats and a run in the first inning. Doc Silva started the inning by breaking a bat, and the ball fell on the infield, as doctor beat it out. Clarke and Harper followed by grounding out second to first, but Tommy Taylor came through with a pinch single that scored Silva, Tommy going out a moment later on an attempted steal. Moley's men increased this lead to three in their half of the second by shoving across two more runs. With one knee Krehmeyer got a triple down the right field foul line, and Burkett brought him home with a single. Burkett advanced to third on Neun's safe walk to right and came home on Statham's infield waltz. This gave the Barons a three-run lead, but they couldn't stand prosperity.

Crackers Count Twice.
The Crackers came within one of tying it up in their half of the third. Five fierce hits scored a couple of runs and made the count 3-2. With one gone Mayer singled, and Dutch Bernsen played second in hand with a double against the right field wall, scoring Sammie Holden, then slammed a single to left and Dutch scored. Graff skied out to short, but Ellen and Schmidt came through with a triple and a single, which Bernsen almost spiked him in the ear, trying to hit the ball, but struck out instead. After Harper had gone out, short to first, Tommy Taylor three-baggered to right and came home on Robertson's infield out. For the remainder of the game, however, the home team was in a tight spot, and good tightened up and from the end of the third through the ninth the Barons got but three hits, if his delivery and fielding were less.

Erratic Fielding.
It was just another case of not enough airtight pitching and an infield that was super-fidgity, and kept the stands in a fidgity delirium as the home team tried to blow through the eighth inning, but it didn't come. When the crucial test arrived, however, up went the innkeepers a la Neun and Krehmeyer, with Statham faltering just as victory was within his grasp. Many of the fans had decried and put the old flippers in gear, feeling sure that the Barons had won a ball game, but the delayed exit, and the moaning inside told 'em that another one had been kicked away in the ninth.

Doc Silva led the attack for the Moley's, batting an even thousand for the day. He beat out two infield hits, slashed out an immaculate single and walked out of the four times he advanced to the plate. Tommy Taylor was the only other Barons to get more than one hit, biffing out a triple and a single, while Sump Clarke, Robertson and Statham were hitless for visitors, getting two each. Dutch and Roy, former Barons, were given big hands on their first trip to the plate.

'NOOGA FANS SEE BIG RIOT

Chattanooga, April 17.—Angered because he was hit by a pitched ball, near the waist, First Baseman Schliebner, of Little Rock, attacked Pitcher Wingfield, of Chattanooga, in the sixth inning of today's game, and other players joined in. The fans crowded on the field and for many minutes a serious riot was threatened. A large squad of police was at the park and succeeded in restoring order. Pitcher Steele, of Little Rock, whose action in knocking down First Baseman Anderson, of Chattanooga, had caused the two-man fight to become general, followed Wingfield from the field, and Pitcher McGraw, of Chattanooga, went after the two. Walter Manager Eddie McDonald, of Chattanooga, held the three players engaged in a battle inside the clubhouse, police finally forcing an entrance after Steele had been severely beaten. Steele asserts that both Chattanooga players hit him, one of them with a chair, while the Chattanooga players claim that Morris only fought him. The incident was brought on by a continuous kick from Manager Elberfeld, of Little Rock, against Wingfield's pitching. The manager urging his players again and again to throw their bats at the pitcher. Little Rock won the game, an erratic affair, 7 to 3. Wingfield being about knocked out when the fight occurred.

Dope Bucket Is Righting Itself Teams Hold True to Predictions

Not many of the boys who deal in figures concerning team strength in their pre-season chatter ever get the chance to yell about telling the body police something in those well-known words, "I told you so." Hence, the vast majority of them are wondering at this time how it comes about that the teams are running just about like they had been doped. It's rare, we say.

In the National League, for instance, the Giants and the Cardinals were believed to have the inside track and both are out in front at this time. A sort of sour note was launched by the Pirates and the Dodgers, but the former were unfortunate in grabbing the Cards for the opening series. The Dodgers had an uncertain start, but are near the top now and coming strong. The Phillies began their campaign nicely, but the team is not strong enough to stick in polite society very long.

The Cleveland Indians, Hugh Fullerton's choice for American league pennant, struck a nice stride on opening day and have won all four games played. Duster Malls figured in a shutout victory Monday, showing that he is in shape for a good season. The Indians' attack is just as savage as it was last season.

The dopest in the Southern League were rapped for a day or two, but even this situation is beginning to clear. Memphis had a hot start, losing the first two games, but the champions looked much better in their last starts and expect to take up the lead immediately. Surprises were offered in the Birmingham-Nashville series. Either the Barons are not as strong as they were in 1921, or the Braves are much better. Atlanta and Mobile failed a bunch of critics.

There have not been enough games yet to furnish any real line on the various teams in the circuit. Atlanta has a stronger attack than was expected, better batted. Chattanooga needs a lot of batting, either, and the Pelicans' pitchers won't function.

GEORGE CLARK LEADS BULLDOGS BATTING.
George "Father" Clark has gone on a batting spree at the University of Georgia and is leading his team in batting and total bases, standing second in the circuit. Atlanta has a stronger attack than was expected, better batted. Chattanooga needs a lot of batting, either, and the Pelicans' pitchers won't function.

McLary Gets Homer.
Nashville, April 17.—McLary mixed hits with errors and took the first game of the series with Nashville, 3 to 1. Gallagher allowed only three hits, but McLary's home run was the first of the season here.

YALE TRIMS RED-BLACK

Macon, Ga., April 17.—(Special.) Bulldog met Bulldog here this afternoon in the Georgia vs. Yale baseball game at Central City park and in a struggle brimming full of features throughout the Blue of the New Haven triumphed, the count for the Yale battle being 1 to 0.

The affair early developed into a red-hot pitchers' battle, with both Cliff Pantone, of Georgia, and Ted Chittenden, of Yale, hurling an exceptional brand of ball. Both hurlers deserved a victory and, as the defense of Yale proved superior to that of Georgia, the Bulldogs carried off his third straight victory in the training game that the Yale machine has played in this city.

As a matter of fact, for pugs of Budd's caliber, there need never be any trouble getting business. His victory, however, brought him to the attention of every promoter in the south, and fans throughout the section want to see the better step.

A good boxer, a powerful clouter and courageous, Budd possesses everything required of a box office attraction and he is likely to draw a lot of money this year. He has matches that will carry him well into June and many of them look to be very profitable.

He has been matched for another battle with Young Stribling, the festivities this time to take place in Macon, where Stribling's father, who is a pugilist, will go to school. Budd gave Strib, a bad pasting in Atlanta recently, but the kid is after revenge.

COLLEGE PARK
WANTS GAME.
If there are any good amateur teams around Atlanta craving action Saturday afternoon, this newspaper has been told that the College Park outfit will be glad to sign articles for a battle.

HAUGDAHL'S MOUNT IS ON EXHIBITION.
Sig Haugdahl and his record-breaking machine are in Atlanta. The latter is on exhibition at the J. W. Goldsmith, Jr.-Grant Co., on Peachtree. The chances are that the famous little machine will be present to describe the mount to any spectators.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Horror, Cards Lose.
St. Louis, April 17.—Chicago handed St. Louis its first defeat of the season in the National League today, winning the second game of the series 7 to 6. The Cardinals led in the second, in which Donk was driven out, and another assault made against Barlow in the seventh won for the Cubs.

Score by innings: R. H. E. St. Louis, 000-000-000-0; Chicago, 000-000-000-7. Batteries: Marmon and O'Farrell, Donk, Barlow and Clemens.

Morrison Hurl Well.
Cincinnati, April 17.—Morrison's great pitching today held Cincinnati to four hits and Pittsburgh won, 1 to 0. The only run of the game was scored in the fifth inning when Rouben Smith, who had pitched for the Pirates in the second and scored on a hit by Griggs.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Pittsburgh, 000-010-000-1; Cincinnati, 000-000-000-0. Batteries: Marmon and Gooch, Luque and Wingo.

HOMER WINS
FOR PETRELS

Lynchburg, Va., April 17.—(Special.)—With two out, the bases full and two strikes on the batter, Kemp hit for a home run in the seventh inning and Oglethorpe university defeated Lynchburg college, 8 to 5. The game, played on a wet field, was marked by hard hitting and by the fact that all of the runs scored were earned. Oglethorpe got her win by an ability to hit Thomas hard in the pinches. The locals lost several good chances to score by too risky base running. The fielding of Parker at short for Lynchburg easily featured the game.

WORLD'S FAIR
STARS READY
The World's Fair baseball club opens the season with the American Legion Club at Ponce de Leon Wednesday night. This will be a large game and will draw a large crowd.

Many former well-known college players are on the American Legion team and the World's Fair team has several players from last year's Georgia State league. This team is managed by George Winters for many years right fielder for Atlanta and he has a lot of team that will play the best teams all over the south this year.

M. D. Gleason, secretary and business manager of this club, announced that the World's Fair club will play the American Railway Express team April 20, and the Agosias Saturday, April 22, these are both splendid clubs and have a large following of friends and it is expected that there will be busy times at Ponce de Leon this week.

Miss Joel Wins Triumph In New Play at Forsyth

In the patois of the stage, a Patsy is a person that is all out of luck. Miss Clara Joel played a part called

"Patsy" at the Forsyth theater Monday night in a play called "That Girl Patsy." Miss Joel was all out of luck.

I don't know, though, but that it was fortunate to show Atlanta that she is an actress of superb ability and a woman of as dauntless courage as Molly Pitcher or Barbara Fretche or Emma Samson or any of the rest of the heroines that adorn the pages of American history.

It was opening night of the week's run at the Forsyth. The audience assembled there was possibly the most brilliant that the theater has seen since the Forsyth Players began their stay. It might have been lack of rehearsal, or it might have been any number of things, but anyhow from the rise of the first curtain it was plain that the company wasn't itself. Lines were mumbled or utterly abandoned. Situations were missed. Business was forgotten.

It was enough to run any actress to distraction. Instead it served as an inspiration for Miss Joel. She met the situation superbly. She threw all her broken forces, reorganized their trembling lines and by the middle of the next act, the performance was running smoothly. At the final curtain it had almost achieved a triumph.

Things like this always happen with stock companies. It will not happen again in six months. It would be a treat, however, to see it happen again, just to see once more the brave and intelligent way in which Miss Joel met the situation. It was as fine a piece of actual heroism as has ever been seen on a burlesque stage.

The play is altogether pleasing. It is a Cinderella story of a little girl rising from rags to riches, who is willing to sacrifice the riches and her good name for the love she bears her benefactors and the lovely young man of the message, who has been raised from the gutter to a position of two-fisted manhood.

William Boyd is, of course, the young man, and he plays it with his usual ease, grace and assurance. Stuart Beebe and Robert Craig working with Mary Tarry furnished a pleasing comedy diversion.

It would be unfair to mention the exceedingly fine way in which W. H. Murdoch made the small part of the butler, stand out.

The rest of the company was up to its usual high standard after Miss Joel had rallied it from its early rout.

Boll Weevil Exterminator, Eradicator, Catcher, Preventor

At last we have a BOLL WEEVIL MACHINE that exterminates the WEEVIL and insures a full yield of staple for the farmer. No Spray—no Chemicals. This machine weighs about eight and one-half pounds. A 15-year-old boy can operate same, ridding a 20-acre field of cotton of the weevil within three days. Cost of machine is nominal. We invite farmers, merchants and other business men interested in a full yield of cotton in their section to call at 297 Peachtree street, Atlanta, Ga., and see the machine demonstrated. We can give employment to a few territorial Agency Managers for this machine.

Forsyth Theater—All week, Forsyth Players in "That Girl Patsy."
Howard Theater—All week, Agnes Ayres in "Bought and Paid For," and other screen features.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Lyric.)

The Lyric bill for the first half of the week was applauded freely Monday and the audience seemed well satisfied.

Sherwin Kelley, a personable young woman with considerable ability, does a daring trick bicycle act that elicited several spontaneous bursts of hand-clapping.

Matthias Lippard, who sang her way into a degree of popularity with Lyric audiences several weeks ago, drew four curtain calls with a novel "song cycle" in which she appeared in three dashingly character costumes. Her accompanist sings a good tenor.

Dobbs, Clark and Dare brought the onlookers to the edges of their seats with a smashing good slap-stick comedy and acrobatic act. The act went over well.

Mit Collins strangled his hearers' laughter by offering a rapid fire comic monologue in a Ghetto accent good enough to arouse doubts as to the genuineness of his stage name.

The last number, a song and dance act by Gattison Jones and Elsie Elliott, with Al Jockey at the piano, impressed many as being good enough to merit a more favorable place on the program.

Loew Vaudeville.
(At the Grand.)

Jack Collins and company is the featured act on the bill at Loew's Grand theater for the first half of the week. They offer a variety of musical skits called "Dear Doctor," in which the company is built around a fake doctor, impersonated by Jack Collins. The three girls in the company are excellent comedians.

The most popular act on the bill is that of Jim Miller and Harm Ross in comedy parodies, songs, ballads and guitar selections. One of the looms is an excellent Hebrew character and creates many laughs with his garbled sayings.

Stan Rickard, Jack McIntyre and Heath's "Hello, Alexander," a musical comedy, is a very good one-act playlet entitled "Show Me," that has a well-defined plot and develops into a surprise finish that is novel. All three excellent parts.

Taylor and Brown open the bill with a musical comedy, "The Sin of Martha Qued," with an all-star cast.

"Bought and Paid For."

"The Red Peacock"

Polia Negri was seen to excellent advantage in her newest picture, "The Red Peacock," at the Strand last night. This story, which recalls the irresistible force of "Camille," is one of exceptional dramatic force and one forgets the tragedy of the theme in one's admiration of the artistic portrayal of the role of the flower girl by Miss Negri.

The story of "The Red Peacock" is that of a frail young woman who, to escape her drunken step-father, enters a madhouse and lives a vicarious existence in which love, sadness and ultimate tragedy find their finest artistic expression.

NEGRO IS ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF THEFT

City Detective H. D. Evans returned to Atlanta Monday night from Charleston, S. C., with John Turner, a negro, in his custody. The negro was arrested in Charleston at the request of Atlanta detectives on a charge of stealing a diamond stud valued at $2,000 from J. B. Hartsfield, of New Orleans, La. The stud was recovered and was brought back to Atlanta by Evans. Turner had attempted to sell the jewel in Charleston for $400 and this attempt led to his arrest.

Mr. J. H. Hartsfield, owner of the diamond, came to Atlanta recently to attend the funeral of his mother and in sending some shirts to the laundry he gave the diamond to the laundress. The negro found the stud and took possession of it, leaving the next day for Charleston.

"Foolish Wives."
(At the Rialto.)

"Foolish Wives," Universal's costly production of Virginia Blaine as the wife of a doctor, which opened Monday at the Rialto theater for a two weeks' run, has been heralded as the costliest and biggest picture ever screened.

The story of the picture, the director and star of the picture, has made a big production. Whatever faults it may have, and no picture is perfect, they are submerged by the force of the theme, by the realism of the atmosphere, and by the vivid portrayals of Von Stroheim and his supporting cast.

"The Rosary."
(At the Metropolitan.)

"The Rosary," a big, pulsating photoplay, is the screen attraction this week at the Metropolitan theater.

In the direction of this production Jerome Storm has gained new laurels for his work. The work of the players interpreting the various roles makes it a new classic in the annals of the screen.

"The Rosary" is by no means a preachment. It is a strong, virile drama—a human document of the past—a picture of the life of a man, which is up to the mark in the activities of one Kenwood Wright.

"The Four Horsemen."
(At the Criterion.)

An epic tale of suffering passion sweeping from the wide plains of the Argentine through the fascinating intrigues of the Argentine capital, the picture is a masterpiece of the screen.

The picture, adapted by June Mathis from the novel by Gertrude Blasco Ibanez, has intensified the dramatic force of the original story and has made it a masterpiece of the screen.

Dear Sir:—Have just noticed your Puzzle Picture in The Atlanta Constitution and am writing for large, clear picture, which I trust will be forwarded to me by next mail, that I might get busy this week-end. Yes, I intend getting in the contest as many others are doubtless planning to do and am quite sure that any who may try and not win one of your prizes, will have won a prize, so to speak, if he has purchased of you any article, as you have the reputation of giving full value for money received.

Your proposition is indeed an attractive one and I am sure both you and your customers will be amply benefitted by the contest.

Thanking you in advance for your prompt attention and awaiting the arrival of the large, clear picture, I am,
Very truly yours,

JBP/HS

C. about 24 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches, black hair, brown eyes 150 pounds, was found at 7 o'clock Monday morning, about 4 miles from Augusta, in Aiken county South Carolina, on the Southern railroad tracks, between Augusta and Columbia, by the train crew of the Southern train, leaving Augusta at 6:25 for Columbia.

Among the torn clothing near the track was found an army discharge with the name David H. Miller, stating that Miller was discharged in 1919, at Newton, N. C., giving his age at that time as 20. There is a knife wound in the right shoulder. The coroner has not yet held an inquest.

O. J. Boston, of 481 Crew street, an employee of the United States Veterans' Bureau in Atlanta, was in charge of Miller and was on his way with the young man to enter him for treatment at government hospital No. 62 at Augusta. Miller was the victim of shell shock.

Monday night Boston told The Constitution that he missed Miller from the train after leaving Warrentonville, S. C., a station en route from the young man's home at Kanapolis, S. C.

He said that Miller left home with a sum of money placed in an envelope and given him by his mother when he departed. Boston stated that he didn't know how much money the envelope contained. Monday night he had failed in his efforts to communicate with Miller's parents.

—and tell TALBOT I sent you.

Our customers send their friends to us. WHY?—a suit we sell for $40 to $55 is worth $75 to $80—so they tell us—ask one of them.
